Hancock land owners battling state in public trust trial

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A fleet of attorneys representing two oil companies, the State of Mississippi, Hancock County company and several land owners are now battling in a trial which should set a precedent for interpreting the state's public trust doctrine.

The trial, which began Monday in Gulfport, primarily involves Cinque Bambini Partnership, an international firm based at Holly Bluff in Hancock County, against the state.

The partnership is suing the state to establish ownership of some 600 acres of property outlined as wetland areas in a Mississippi Marine Resources Council map prepared in the early 1970's.

MMRC was the predecessor of the State Bureau of Marine Resources headquartered in Long Beach.

The map was designed to illustrate the mean high tide mark which may indicate state ownership lines, but BMR officials revealed in testimony the map has 'discrepancies.'

An air conditioning failure in Hancock County's Bay St. Louis Courthouse prompted a move of the Chancery Court trial to Harrison County's Gulfport Courthouse.

Chancellor William L. Stewart of Gulfport, Division One—Eight Chancery Court Division of Mississippi is presiding over the action.

Plaintiffs in the suit include Lidia and Carol Allen, owners of one-half the mineral rights of the Bambini property; Harry Kellerher, a neighboring riverfront landowner; and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Houston, a company leasing a northern portion of the partnership's property.

Joining the state as defendants is Saga Petroleum Co. of Jackson. Saga holds wetlands leases from the state.

The property in question is roughly 2,400 acres bounded on the north and east by Jourdan River, on the south by Bayou LaCroix and on the west by Hwy. 603. I-10 crosses the center of the land area east to west.

Some 600 acres within those boundaries have been leased for oil and gas exploration by the state to Saga.

However, Bambini contends it owns that property and waterways based on its own professional studies and a 'headlands' consideration in the public trust doctrine.

Mack Cameron of Jackson represents the state and is joined by Saga's attorneys Boyce Holleman of Gulfport and Charles E. Harper of Jackson.

The local landowners are represented by Walter Phillips of Bay St. Louis; William Haynes of Houston, Tex.; and L. Arnold Pyle and Ernest Taylor, both of Jackson.

Phillips Petroleum attorneys are Joel Blass of Pass Christian; and Tim Jones, Elizabeth A. Harris and E.H. Brown, all of Houston.

Attorneys crowded into the front of the Gulfport courtroom with armloads of paperwork and maps Monday to begin the trial which is expected to last from two to four weeks.

THE CASE UNFOLDS FIRST DAY

Stewart excused Mississippi Power Co. and Coast Materials Co. as defendants as requested by their attorneys.

Power company will explain refund plans

Mississippi Power Company will begin an extensive informational program in July to explain a $34 million refund plan approved by the Public Service Commission.

The refund to retail customers of Mississippi Power Company results from settlement of a breach of contract suit filed in mid-1975 by the utility against Peabody Coal Company for failure to deliver coal for shipment to the firm's Watson Electric Generating Plant in Harrison County.

"We believe the plan is comprehensive and equitable because the amount of the refund check will be based on the total kilowatt-hour usage by each customer during the period from June 1975 through December 1980," Alan Barton, president and chief operating officer, said.

"The refund plan provides that checks be mailed in December to retail customers who received electricity from Mississippi Power Company any time during the 5.5 year period."

Barton explained that it was during this period that customers paid higher fuel costs through the fuel adjustment because Mississippi Power Company had to buy coal at higher prices than those provided for in the long-term contract with Peabody Coal Company.

Barton said, "The plan provides that those persons who received an electric service bill during the month of December 1980, and did not have service at another location during the June 1975 to December 1980, period, automatically will be included in the refund program. However, if the customer, since December 1980, has discontinued service, the customer will need to furnish the company a forwarding address."

Beginning the first week in July, Mississippi Power Company, through the news media, will begin requesting information from customers who have changed accounts or terminated service during the 5.5 year period. Specific data will be needed in order to determine a customer's eligibility for the refund, the amount of the refund, and the address to which a refund check should be mailed.

Customers in this area should watch The Sea Coast Echo for further information about the refund program.

Mississippi Power Company, a member of the Southern electric system, is headquartered at Gulfport and provides electric service to nearly 160,000 customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

Child drowns in bayou

By BRENT MACEY

A four-year-old girl who wandered from her parents' home in Garden Isle Subdivision around dinner time Sunday accidentally drowned in a nearby bayou before she was noticed missing, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said Monday.

Efforts by neighbors, Mobile Medic Units, Diamondhead Rescue Units and doctors at Hancock General Hospital failed to revive Dana Michelle Milton of Rt. 3 Box 40 Bay St. Louis.

Peterson said his office received a call from the Washington Road and Elaine Street area at 4:30 p.m. and arrived to find a neighbor attempting to revive the child on a dock in that area.

Mobile Medic Units and Diamondhead Rescue Units arrived shortly after we did. The units administered cardiac pulmonary resuscitation for some 30 minutes in attempts to save the child, Peterson said.

He said the girl was transferred to

Court ruling may relieve pressures at Hancock jail

By BRENT MACEY

A recent ruling by the United States Supreme Court concerning the Eighth Amendment ban on 'cruel and unusual punishment' may relieve some of the pressure of overcrowding being felt at the Hancock County Jail.

The 8-1 ruling last week declared an Ohio inmate's rights were not violated when he was confined for a long period of time with another prisoner in a cell designed for one.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said he feels the decision 'could give the county more leeway' in dealing with overcrowding at the county facility.

Peterson has stated overcrowding is 'one of the major problems facing the county jail.' He attributed that problem to the increasing number of state inmates now being confined in Hancock County.

"If the ruling had gone the other way it would have put more of a burden on the state," Peterson said.

A ruling by Greenville Federal District Judge William C. Keady in 1975 declared all state inmates in Mississippi must have a minimum of 50 square feet of living space.

That ruling initially concerned the state penitentiary, however the ruling has been more recently interpreted to include county jails because of the state prisoners retained by the local jails.

Keady recently requested all sheriff's departments in the state to fill out a

Pass Mishap fatal to welder

A 35-year-old Waveland man was pronounced dead at Gulfport Memorial Hospital Tuesday after sustaining a massive charge of electricity at the Pass Christian Industrial Park.

John O. Conner of 104 Central Avenue, Waveland, received a massive charge of electricity evidenced by burns on both hands and chest, according to Harrison County Coroner Ed Little.

Little said the exact nature of the accident has not been determined.

Conner was an employee of W&A Engineering, 400 Market St. north of Pass Christian.

Survivors include his wife and son, both of Waveland. The body will be sent to a Missouri funeral home for services and burial.

IRS charges false return

A federal grand jury in Jackson has indicted Bay St. Louis seafood dealer John E. Ladner for filing false income tax information in 1976 and 1977.

Ladner has been requested to answer to the indictment in United States District Court in Illinois this week.

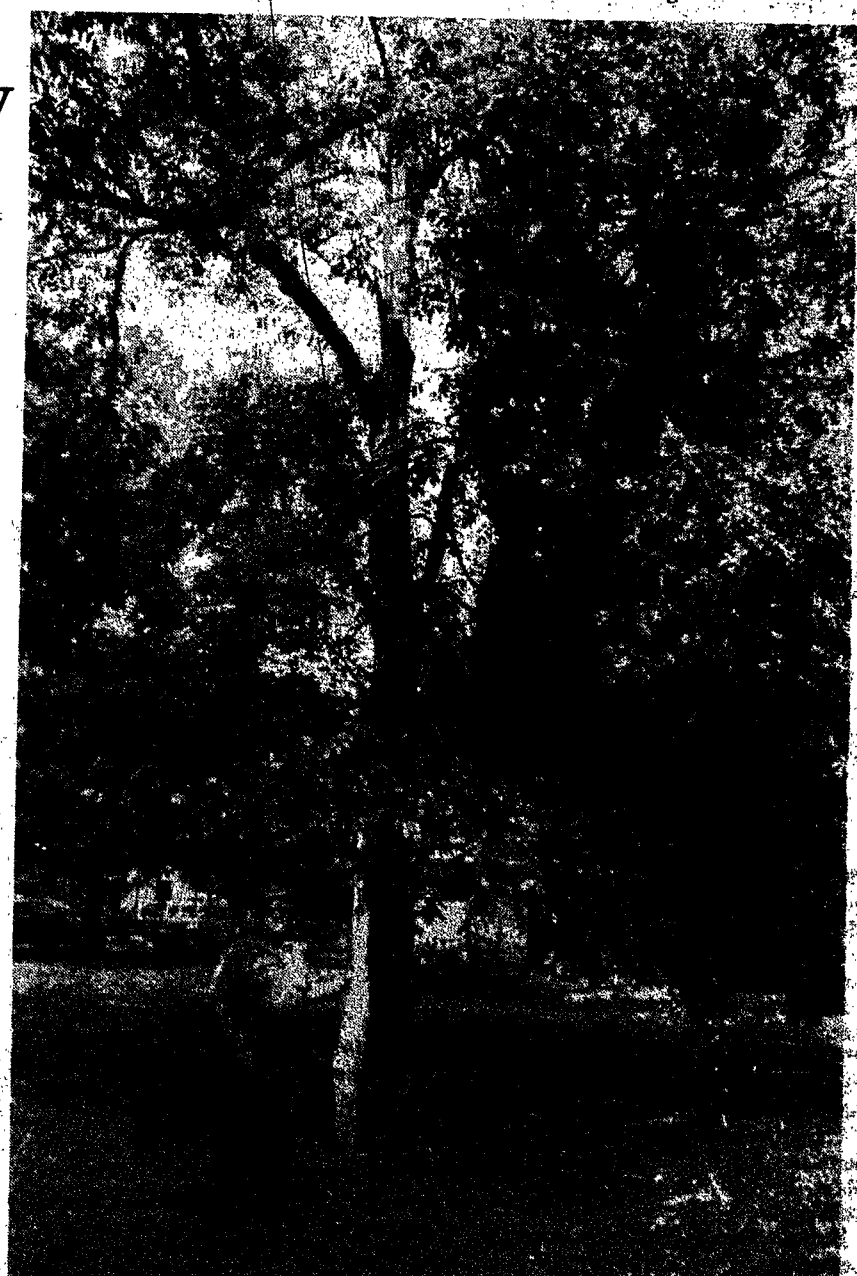

The two count indictment alleges Ladner, of Rt. 2, Box 745, substantially reduced his income in a return filed jointly with his wife Charlotte.

Count One of the indictment charges Ladner with reporting $294,730 in gross receipts in 1976 while he received substantial gross receipts over that amount.

Count Two alleges the seafood dealer reported gross receipts of $294,730 in 1977 when he again received substantial gross receipts above that.

The top of the tree leaned over and a birch house which was attached to the tree was flying after being scorched by the blast. The storm system which swept through the county also created a tornado in the Port Beauville Industrial Park. Star Impres, located in the park, reported flying debris caused minor damage to a shed behind its main office. Helen Brownlee, office manager at Star, said the tornado did not touch down but passed overhead at approximately 10 a.m. "It sounded like a freight train," she said. The northern end of Hancock County also reported high winds and heavy rains during Tuesday's line of thunderstorms. (Staff photo by Brent Macey) form describing the conditions of county jails.

Ruling

Peterson said he feels providing that information 'might be incriminating' but decided to reveal the information in that manner rather than have Federal Bureau of Investigation Agents come to the county to collect the information themselves.

Peterson said he also felt a law suit might result from failure to obey the court order.

Assistant Attorney General Roger Goode stated his office will contact Keady in the near future 'to see if he can offer us some relief on the 50 square foot ruling.'

He attributed this action to the outcome of the Supreme Court ruling.

Goode said, 'I do think the ruling will have an effect on the federal courts.'

However he said he did not believe the ruling would effect the justice department 'at all.'

The number of suits being filed by inmates against the state and counties has been increasing in the last few years.

A suit in Mississippi filed in federal courts—Gates vs. Callier—in 1970 started the ball rolling.

Goode said he personally knows of 20 suits pending against the state and counties.

Peterson is well aware of that fact. He stated the county and sheriff used to be immune to any law suits.

'That ruling has changed,' Peterson said. 'The county and the sheriff can be named in a law suit and are liable.'

Jeffrey Taylor, of Gulf Regional Planning, currently working with Peterson to establish a jail manual for Hancock County, said he did not believe the ruling would have a great deal of impact on county jails.

'The inmate involved in that suit was living in a model prison,' Taylor said. He was confined to the cell with another prisoner for the sole purpose of sleeping. There were a number of other facilities available to him during the day.'

Regardless of whether the ruling will lighten the county's burden of housing increasing numbers of prisoners, Peterson stated there is still a need in Hancock County for a new jail.

'If you consider the way the community is growing, I think you have to look into the future and see there will be more and more problems; and the county will be facing a jail crisis more and more in the coming years.'

Judicial Performance Commission recommends Anderson removal

The Associated Press in Jackson this week reported Hancock County Justice Court Judge Lloyd Anderson has been recommended for removal from office.

The Mississippi Commission on Judicial Performance Tuesday recommended Anderson be removed from office for willful misconduct in office.

It was the first such recommendation since the commission was created by constitutional amendment last summer.

In a report filed with the state Supreme Court, the commission said Anderson unlawfully converted $214 in public money to his own use during a three-month period in 1979.

In 35 specific instances, Anderson collected more from the defendant than he reported to the clerk of the court, the commission found. The overcharges ranged from $2 to $39.

'While this represents a relatively small amount of money, the commission found Anderson's actions constituted a continuing pattern of misconduct, willfully and deliberately designed to convert public money to his own use,' said Brant Brantley, executive director of the commission. The Commission also found misconduct in the judge's handling of at least two traffic tickets.

Anderson is in his second four-year term.

If he chooses to fight the recommendation, both Anderson and the commission have 30 days to file briefs with the Supreme Court.

The Commission on Judicial Performance voted to remove Anderson by a vote of five to two.

More 'traffic cops' needed on waterways

The number of boaters on the waters of Hancock County during the summer months, especially weekends, shows a need for more water safety officers.

We realize the patrolling of waters in Mississippi has changed in recent years in structure, but to us we see fewer and fewer officials patrolling our waters.

We used to see the Water Safety Patrol Boats in the rivers, bayous and canals and also boats on trailers on the roadways. They are hardly seen today.

There are more boats, more powerful motors, some pulling up to four skiers at one time, and very little law enforcement.

There are hundreds of boats on the waters of Hancock on summer weekends. Some fishermen, some boat riding, some skiers, and everybody having a good time.

Boats come in all sizes, from little flat bottoms to large pleasure craft.

Many of the boats are overloaded with passengers and we have noted and been told of many boats, especially the little ones, which seldom have sufficient safety equipment.

Several years ago we watched a flat bottom boat on the Jourdan River sink because it was overloaded with passengers and carried not one life jacket. This was at McLeod Park, lucky there were other boats close by because many of those in the swamped boat were unable to swim.

We realize there is a tremendous cost in having officers patrolling the waters, but because of the amount of boat traffic we feel it is necessary.

There are auxiliary officers for police and sheriff's departments, why not have water safety auxiliary officers who work on summer weekends and special holidays.

There is a need, we hope the proper authorities will see the need and take action.

Jail more probable for drinking driver

After 1 July, it will be easier for a drinking driver to go to jail in Mississippi.

And, according to provisions of the new drunk driving law, the trip will be more expensive.

Under language of the bill passed by the 1981 legislative session, the blood alcohol content of a person has been lowered from .15 to .10 to sustain a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol.

For the first time offender of the new DUI law, the person could be punished by a $200 fine and mandatory attendance at the Mississippi Alcohol Safety Education Program.

The second offense within two years could result in a $250 to $1,000 fine, a ten day to one year term in jail and loss of a license for six months.

For a third offense in a four year time period a driver could be subjected to a fine up to $1,000, up to one year in jail and loss of a license to drive for two years.

Under the new law, judges who handle cases are prohibited from suspending fines. The bill provides procedures for suspending licenses when operators refuse to take chemical tests.

Sidney B. Berry, commissioner of Public Safety, has said that the bill, when it becomes effective, will deter drivers who drink while operating a motor vehicle and will result in safer highways.

NEW DUI LAW—Frank Brewer, center, assistant inspector for the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, explains the state's new law on driving under the influence (DUI) of alcohol which goes into effect July 1, 1981 to Waveland Police Department and Hancock County Sheriff's Department personnel. A Driving While Intoxicated (DWI) charge—those drivers whose breath test registers above a .15 blood alcohol reading—will no longer be in effect. Instead, drivers whose blood alcohol reading registers .10 and above will be considered to have been Driving Under the Influence. First offender punishment is an automatic $200 fine with a one year license suspension if the offender does not complete a Mississippi Alcohol Safety Education Program (MASEP). The offender can retain his license only by participating in that program. Second offenders will be fined $250 to $1,000 with a six month license suspension, and third-time offenders will receive a $500 to $1,000 fine with a two year license suspension. The MASEP course will be offered only to first time offenders. Participants in the briefing program from left clockwise are, Veronica Hattabaugh, Fairley Necaise, Chuck James, Brewer, Glen Strong, David Garcia and Linda Sands. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Bits 'n pieces

We observed two men and a woman diving off the Bayou LaCroix bridge on Hwy. 603 Sunday.

This is a dangerous and unlawful practice. It is a stiff fine for persons caught doing such a practice on any bridges in Hancock County, if they are found guilty.

We hope everyone will observe this very important law.

While at the annual Mississippi Press Association's meeting this past weekend we enjoyed several conversations with Dave Webb.

Dave worked with us in the summer of '59 and still remembers the good times he enjoyed while at the Echo.

He is the editor and publisher at Meadville, where he has been for many years.

Dave said to tell all of his friends hello.

Folks who enjoy Blue Grass and Country Fiddling are in for a treat Saturday night if they attend Fip Johnson's 5th Annual Blue Grass and Fiddling charity.

Fip has been working hard in lining up some of the best talent in the area for this big extravaganza.

It will be held in the Sy Rosenthal Gym, St. Augustine Seminary starting at 8 p.m.

Proceeds from the event will go to the Musician Charity and Cancer Funds to be donated in memory of Fip's wife, Mrs. Rose J. Johnson.

We hope many of you will attend this event as tickets are only $2.50 at the door.

We have noted several go-cart riders on public streets in recent weeks.

We feel this is a dangerous practice because a person can be struck by an auto because the go-carts are so low a driver could possibly not see them.

In checking the law we find it is a violation to use any motorized vehicle on public streets without a license tag and driver's license.

So we urge all folks with go-carts to please keep off the public roads, it is too dangerous and unlawful.

Letters to the Editor

Parent of graduate resents extravagance of congressional mailings

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

Enclosed please find a copy of my letter to Trent Lott.

I recognize the fact that one letter from one voter will probably have no impact in Washington; however since I consider this expenditure the epitome of bureaucratic waste, I feel it might be of interest to other taxpayers—most especially to those who have no children in the school system.

I cannot help but wonder in just how many other senseless useless ways our tax money is being thrown away.

Yours truly,
(Mrs.) Robert F. Smith
Bay St. Louis

Bay St. Louis, Miss.
June 20, 1981

Trent Lott, Member of Congress
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Lott:

My son was one of 135 who received diplomas from Bay Senior High School in Hancock County last month. The day after graduation he received an elaborately printed notification of congratulations on his graduation from you.

Tax dollars via the school board paid for the diplomas, and I assume tax dollars via your office paid for the congratulatory letter.

This is just one school in one small county of Mississippi, with 135 graduates. If these letters were sent to every graduate in the state of Mississippi, whether in public or private schools, it literally boggles the mind as to how much of our tax money went into this inexcusable waste.

I am angry, outraged, indignant and disgusted by this unjustified, self-serving act. Try as I might, I cannot see how the taxpayers are served by this.

At this time when the President, and supposedly our congressmen and senators, are trying desperately to cut the national budget, relieve our tax situation, and in every way heal the dreadful state of our national economy, I can find no justification for such a blatant waste of tax dollars.

So many worthwhile projects and programs have had to be cut and/or make major sacrifices. I cannot help but wonder how much longer a CETA worker might have been able to stay on had this money been available for salary, or how much less could have been cut from the Senior Citizen program or how many food stamp recipients might have benefited from these funds.

This is not to mention highway repair and maintenance, energy conservation programs and Special Education programs all of which suffer from a lack of funds.

Could this money not have been put to better use than to go from your office to innumerable trash cans? Could it not have been used to finance college educations for some of the needy recipients of your congratulations?

I am of the opinion that these letters were meant to be potential vote getters as they were sent to new graduates, most of whom are just 18 or soon will be 18. I can assure you that in at least one instance this has backfired.

I am a Republican, but if you should decide to run for office again, I not only will not vote for you, but I will use whatever influence I may have to persuade anyone else I know not to vote for you.

If you, for whatever reason, can use my tax money in this frivolous fashion, it scares me to death to think what you might be doing in other areas.

Please, do not send me one of your standard acknowledgments of receipt letters, it would simply be a further waste of taxpayers money.

Yours truly,

Chamber hours curtailed during fire damage renovation

Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce would like to take this means of expressing its gratitude to the person who was passing on Highway 90 Sunday night, June 13, and reported the fire at the Chamber office.

We have not been able to identify this person, but we would like to thank him for stopping and calling the fire department. Had it not been for his concern, the Chamber's office could have suffered greater damage, possibly even complete loss, from the fire.

It is people like this who make Hancock County a nice place in which to live, and we appreciate the concern and quick thinking he displayed.

We would also like to thank the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Fire Departments for the way they handled the fire. They were there right away and put it out very quickly. We also appreciate the assistance of the Bay St. Louis Police Department and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Since the fire, the Chamber office hours have been rather irregular. We appreciate the patience people have shown during this time. And we ask that you continue to bear with us over the next few weeks as the repair process begins.

Sincerely,
Jerry B. Benigno

White collar criminals deserve jail sentences

Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Sir:

I have just read of another contribution to the pathetic over-crowding of our jails - no, I mean our institutions of leisure detention.

To wit: Earl Butz receives 30 days in jail for tax evasion.

There can be no doubt anymore in the mind of any honorable person that these white collar criminal offenses are occurring faster than they can be processed out on the present 30 to 90 day incarceration system. Why?

Simply because the meager fines - a legal disgrace to honorable people - they are asked to pay are so little they merely take it out of their 'take' and still have enough moola left to make it worthwhile to sacrifice their pride - if that word even exists today - for a few days of detention in grandeur.

Oh yes, the honest taxpayer pays for this deluxe incarceration, too.

There is no doubt about it today, crime does pay.

My heart bleeds for poor old Earl Butz, who at 71, just one year older than I, and after three years of hush-hush on easy street, and only due to a regrettable mistake, and due to his 'old age', his lawyer is pleading for him to be completely forgiven.

I wonder if this same lawyer is going to feel the same way about his 'take' to defend this tax evader, this law breaker who apparently betrayed his constituents and used his prestige for a cover up to swindle the government?

Vets insurance scam dubbed 'Wampum From Washington'

'Wampum from Washington'—that's the latest version of the long-running insurance hoax that has plagued the Veterans Administration and thousands of World War II veterans since 1948, according to Mike Ladner, veterans service officer for Hancock County.

The "Wampum" handbill, advising WW II vets they can collect a non-existent insurance dividend on their cancelled policies has recently surfaced in Minnesota, Ohio, Indiana, Louisiana and Montana - this time with an illegal "confidence game" twist.

The fraudulent flyers promise to "cut red tape" by supplying an address for a quick dividend payment in return for $10 that is to be sent to a post office box.

Postal authorities have taken a dim view of this scheme and have already interviewed one man who was distributing the handbills at a "good news."

The bogus forms have been sent to VA by the thousands each month for several years.

Acting VA Administrator Rufus Wilson speculated that "someone has obviously decided that if there are that many gullible people, there must be a way to make a quick buck out of it."

"VA has investigated the hoax from every conceivable angle," according to Wilson, "without ever being able to establish any logical motive for spreading this false information. But with this new and illegal approach of selling the address, we advise that a report be made immediately to local police officials when anyone is observed producing or distributing the so-called application forms or the 'Wampum from Washington' handbill."

By ED BLAKE
SOLDIERS NOT FORGOTTEN

The passage of 37 years has only slightly blurred and certainly not dimmed the memory of a World War II episode off the shores of Italy which in a split second caused the death of more Mississippians in a single action than any other known incident.

Following a public appeal for information concerning 24 missing-in-action soldiers in the U.S. Army's 83rd Chemical Mortar Battalion through this column several weeks ago, public response has exceeded all expectations as wartime members of the 83rd CML or relatives and friends contacted this writer concerning the explosion aboard a U.S. Navy LST off the Anzio beachhead on January 26, 1944.

This is that story. The headquarters of probably the fightingest unit involved in the European Theatre of operations was shifting its operations from North Africa and Sicily to the bloody shin of Italy's boot at Anzio after stopping off at Naples on the way.

Two vessels carried the entire complement of the U.S. 83rd Chemical Mortar Battalion toward the assault on Rome itself with a beachhead landing about 40 miles southwest at the coastal resort of Anzio. Nearly half the unit, consisting of Companies A and B, was aboard the lead ship, a Landing Ship Tank, and established the Anzio beachhead on January 26. These men were specially trained in chemical warfare—shock troops, employing 4.2 inch mortars to lob shells into the laps of the Germans from close range while U.S. Rangers, or British Commandos, and/or other front line troops fought fiercely to seize enemy occupied territory.

As the lead LST hit the beach and discharged Companies A and B, German planes were busy strafing, bombing and dropping sea mines offshore. The second LST was ordered to anchor and hold up about ten miles offshore because of the minefield off the beach. On top of that, wintry winds were raw and the sea, turbulent.

As the second LST was still about ten miles off the beach on January 26, an explosion and fire raked the ship at 0428.

John R. Holley, who today is on the athletic staff of the University of Mississippi, was asleep on an upper bunk when he was aroused by acrid fumes and smoke filling his compartment. He dropped to the floor and crawled along the deck as pandemonium broke loose. Men struggled from their quarters to get into a passageway that could lead them to fresh air on the decks.

Though burned by the explosions and fires continuing on the ship, Holley and a buddy, Harry Cohen, tried to return toward their compartment to help lead others, but smoke turned them back.

Robert M. Chamblee and Arlander Benson, both of Fulton, were among the more than two dozen Mississippians aboard the stricken vessel. They observed men jumping overboard as they reached the top deck, but hesitated to join them because of the location of the ship, the heavy seas, and the fact that it was cold and sleeting. But the ship's deck was getting hot. They climbed down onto the anchor and its chain and perched shortly before deciding they too had to hit the water.

Chamblee noticed that Benson separated from his life belt on impact with the water and from then on he never saw what happened to him as each was on his own, but Benson never made it ashore. Chamblee later, in a letter to his wife, reluctantly described his circumstances.

"The water was really cold...I knew after I jumped that I had a long struggle ahead. I almost gave up...but your's and mother's sweet faces came before me, and then I could never give up..."

He was rescued by another vessel after being adrift in the sea for three hours. Meanwhile Holley had managed to leap from the deck of the burning LST to the deck of a Navy LCI that managed to come alongside thrice in the choppy sea.

Only 171 out of 600 83rd CML men survived the sinking. And today neither survivors nor historians can clearly say whether the explosion was caused by a sea mine or by a massive German gun, Anzio Archie, that fired 525 pound shells "with missile boosters" on the sea invaders from the safety of a railway tunnel.

At least eight of the victims were from Hawamba county, Mississippi. Others were from all over the state.

Unplanned pregnancies bring difficult decisions

By MARJORIE MUSICK
Hancock Health Dept.

During the past 20 years medical science has developed relatively safe methods by which a woman can plan when she wants to have a baby.

Great strides have even been made in what is called "natural family planning" for women whose religious or moral values prevent them from using medical methods.

Despite the many alternatives to family planning available, some women discover they are pregnant and must make decisions regarding this unexpected event.

This article will explore the options available to a woman with a problem pregnancy.

None of the choices are easy to make, and this situation often is a crisis point whether the woman involved is married or not.

The choice to place a child for adoption is a very difficult one to make. Many women, however, feel they cannot adequately provide for a child and choose to place the baby with adoptive parents.

If done properly, with maximum support from professionals and family members, adoption remains a healthy alternative.

There exists a large backlog of couples who can provide a loving family situation for an adopted child.

A word of warning: any woman who is considering placing her child for adoption should go through one of the many agencies set up for this purpose. Agencies such as Catholic Social Services or Mississippi Children's Home Society work very hard to find good homes for children.

Prospective parents are selected with great care and all the legal procedures are followed to protect the natural mother, the child, and the adoptive parents.

At this time, abortion remains a safe, legal alternative to an unplanned pregnancy. Abortions which are performed in the first three months can be done on an outpatient basis through special clinics set up for this purpose.

As with adoption, the decision to terminate a pregnancy is a hard one to make. If a woman holds religious convictions against abortion the decision is doubly difficult.

In my opinion, no one should seek the alternative of abortion unless she can be reasonably sure that this option will not produce guilt and shame because of underlying moral values.

A facility and doctor should be chosen with care and adequate counseling should be available both before and after the procedure.

If the decision to terminate a pregnancy is made, a safe, sterile, legal procedure and quality after care is vital.

Many women feel that they cannot face the options of abortion or adoption. Whether a woman is married or not, she might choose to keep her baby and attempt to provide a healthy home situation for it.

Perhaps this is the hardest choice by far because it is a long term choice. If marriage to the father has been ruled out, for whatever reason, the unwed mother must face the financial and emotional problems which go along with single parenthood.

For the unwed teen, it often means cutting short the normal activities of adolescence and assuming the adult-parent role.

Unfortunately, children who are unplanned and unwanted often become victims of child abuse or neglect.

In order to reduce the negative long term effects, the unwed mother needs to make concrete plans all during her pregnancy.

Decisions must be made regarding medical expenses, continuation of education, employment, and child care. At this time, our society still provides some measure of financial support for the unwed mother and her baby. Certain women can qualify for Medicaid through the Department of Public Welfare.

These monies ensure adequate pre-natal care and safe, in-hospital deliveries. In addition, several private agencies such as Catholic Social Services maintain live-in temporary residences and mutual assistance homes for the unwed mother.

Good support and adequate advance planning are available at little or no cost. An unplanned pregnancy can be difficult and often the cause of despair.

Remember, you are not alone. Help is available from clergy, social workers, nurses, and a variety of mental health professionals.

Any one of these people can help you make a decision on how to cope with an unplanned pregnancy. Just ask!

Ole Miss researchers eyeing arthritis remedy

Aspirin and hydrocortisone may have to take a backseat in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, say scientists from The University of Mississippi Research Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences.

Studies conducted by Research Institute scientists have shown that a synthetic compound known as CBC is possibly more effective than traditional treatments when used as therapy for inflammatory diseases.

"Because CBC is a non-steroid, it is a much safer drug than hydrocortisone," said Dr. Mahmoud Elsohly, research assistant professor at the Institute. "CBC will not produce the side effects — including retention of salts and inhibition of the immune system, which often leaves a person more susceptible to disease — that steroids sometimes do. The compound is also more effective than a common aspirin tablet."

Scientists have known for years that CBC has anti-inflammatory properties. Dr. Elsohly said, but Ole Miss researchers have developed a procedure for the synthesis of CBC which produces sufficient amounts of the pure compound for a variety of biological activity tests.

Extensive testing has revealed that CBC may also be useful in the treatment of bacterial and fungal diseases.

"The combined anti-bacterial and antifungal activities of CBC are quite encouraging," said Dr. Carlton Turner, director of the Research Institute. "A qualitative screening of the compound has shown that it possesses strong antibacterial and mild antifungal properties. Further testing is in progress now to assess the activity of CBC against other compounds."

Dr. Turner said the Research Institute has applied for a patent on both the synthesis and biological activity of CBC and is contacting drug companies for potential licensing of the compound.

Local realtors listed among award winners

Jim Wetzel, Harrison County assessor, addressed the Gulfport Board of Realtors recently at the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

Calling on his 27 years experience in the assessor's office, Wetzel gave an in-depth report of the tax system of the county as it affects real estate, personal property, automobiles and public utilities.

He discussed the recent Mississippi Supreme Court decision concerning statewide property re-appraisals.

We warned the group that Mississippi Senate Bill No. 2762 would triple real estate taxes, if passed in its present form.

In reply, LaReta N. Rick, local board president, stated that realtors at the national, state and local levels are dedicated to preserving the rights and privileges of property owners and that the local and state realtor legislative committees will be working on a bill to counter Senate Bill No. 2762.

Nell Frisbie, awards chairman, presented awards for the 1980 Million Dollar Club.

Silver awards were presented for members listing and selling a million dollars of real estate; gold awards for $1.5 million; ruby award for the realtor with the greatest number of closed sales; and diamond award for the greatest sales volume.

Those receiving the Silver award include:

Trial.....

Coast Materials owns a site just north of I-10 on Hwy. 605.

Pyle then requested the defense produce its documents so their 'expert witness' could review the information.

Holleman reported he did not bring the documents because they were 'cumbersome' and asked that both sides present their cases.

The judge instructed both sides to gather all supportive documents and present the information to the court.

After a one-half hour recess Pyle objected to Cameron's use of a tape recorder because it might be used to 'dispatch information to the press.'

Stewart overruled the objection.

Pyle then explained the reason for the complaint and stated, "It is the position of the complainants that their title is legal and proper to those areas we show on our map as boundaries."

"As we develop our case we will show only a small portion of acreage is below the mean high water line," he said.

Pyle noted the state is claiming some 600 acres of Cinque Bambini's 2,400 acres by charting 'little ditches to find the ebb and flow of the tide.'

The complainants attorney then charged the state had performed no legal survey to establish its wetlands maps.

Holleman objected to Pyle's remarks charging him with presenting the defendant's case.

Saga's attorney said, in presenting the defense's position, the state owns all property 'where rivers and streams ebb and flow,' and MMRC's wetlands map represented an 'overkill' in establishing these areas.

He noted the 'headland rule,' which Cinque Bambini is seeking to incorporate into state boundary laws, would allow private ownership of Bayou Enciente and two lakes dredged to provide sand fill for I-10 roadbed construction.

"We leased the land from the state in good faith. The state can't give it away or take it," Holleman said.

Blass responded that Holleman's view of state law was 'too simplistic' and said the state does not own 'everything within the ebb and flow of the tide.'

"Lakes and bayous reach far into this property. This case is one of monumental importance and will have an effect on a lot of people," he explained.

"We believe in one of the fundamental concepts which is the right of private property," Blass said.

"The original public-trust document was for the personal benefit of the king's coffers and to establish the king as sovereign," he reported.

"The state and Saga are not asking to enforce the law, but this is an instrumentality for oppression of the people," Blass stated.

"We expect to show the court that the public trust document pertains to the great arms of the sea," the company attorney said.

"A true map of where the tide ebbs and flows would look like an EKG of a man in mortal terror," he stated.

"It's remarkable how this doctrine reaches inland when a gas field is here," Blass noted.

"A little man with a house on pilings can't defend himself and has to rely on this court's decision," he added.

Cameron replied that the court would set a precedent to establish the mean high tide mark.

"We will determine how the public trust applies here and show the MMRC map is not a proper map. The ramifications of the suit will have an influence on the entire coast so far as fishing and hunting, and is a problem regarding closure of access," he explained.

"Taylor argued that 'access is not a question in front of the court' and is a case of ownership.

"The public trust doctrine does not apply to tiny streams. This has tremendous implications because if the state owns all the little streams since 1817, how many of these have been filled up," he said.

"The state can build a highway across this bayou and the lakes were created because of I-10. The state changed the bayou for the benefit of the public," Taylor stated.

"Cameron says the public trust doctrine is designed to protect the public—hopefully the landowners should be protected. It isn't the public we're concerned about here, but its all of us who own property," Taylor said.

"One of the central points in this case is whether or not the public trust doctrine extends into Bayou LaCrosse and Bayou Enciente... does the 'doctrine' extend into a tributary of a tributary?" Cinque Bambini's attorney asked.

"This case is a prelude to establish a $2 million claim (mineral rights) for the state's benefit," he added.

After organizing exhibits for some 20 minutes Holleman asked that Phillips Petroleum be excluded from the case because the company does not hold interests in the lease area.

But after Blass argued that Phillips has leases in the northern section of the Cinque Bambini property, the judge determined the company should be allowed to join the complainants.

Stewart also overruled Holleman's request to limit Phillips' attorneys in cross examination.

The judge also overruled an objection by Jones to exclude Saga's leases as evidence.

Joseph Gill Jr., wetlands division chief of the Mississippi Bureau of Marine resources, testified that the MMRC (predecessor of BMR) did not conduct any surveys to compile the wetlands map, know how the lines were established and formulate the maps to establish state and private property lines.

But Gill said in the mid-1970's the State Mineral Lease Board requested acreage estimates of the wetland areas indicated on the maps.

"The board requested all tidal areas on this map and we gave them the acreage outlined. We told them this was approximate acreage," Gill explained.

Holleman then produced minutes of a board meeting and Pyle asked the documents be marked as evidence 'so we won't lose them.'

After a flurry of objections to Holleman's method of questioning Blass established that Saga was leasing property six to seven months before Phillips.

P. Larry Lewis, a BMR biologist, testified that there 'were probably some discrepancies' in the wetlands maps and these were discovered about one year after the documents were published.

CRUMP TESTIFIES SECOND DAY

Joseph R. Crump of Houston, Tex., a member of the partnership and a chemical engineer, explained how the family firm was organized, that his uncle initially purchased the property in about 1930 and it was primarily utilized to raise cattle and grow timber.

He also noted that a garden area, Holly Bluff, was opened to the public after World War II.

Crump said their title to the land had never been questioned and that the partnership filed suit after the MMRC map was published.

"We were advised that the map was for official use and was the boundary indicating the mean high water line," he stated.

"It seemed to us the state was leasing land which belonged to us and the MMRC map had been used as a guideline. This constituted a claim of a considerable amount of land," Crump explained.

He said Cinque Bambini's ownership is based on property deeds and tax receipts.

Crump said the partnership never claimed a 'substantial portion' of Jourdan River, but did express ownership of a small island (Fish Island) and channel at the mouth of Bayou LaCrosse.

He noted that after the 1947 hurricane a channel was dug into Bayou Enciente to refloat a ferry boat washed in by the storm.

Holleman produced a certified 1822 map of Bayou LaCrosse which he stated showed that the Fish Island channel was the bayou's original mouth.

However, Crump pointed out the map showed the bayou flowing in the opposite direction.

Holleman then produced a series of aerial photographs maps of the disputed area taken from 1942 to 1969 showing changing topographic patterns.

He noted how the construction company building I-10 had rerouted Bayou Enciente and two lakes were dug on the partnership's property on either side of right-of-way for road bed fill.

Crump explained the construction company rerouted the bayou to 'avoid convoluted' which would have eroded an I-10 embankment.

He said he 'suspected' the area was subject to tides.

Holleman claimed the bayou has historically been utilized for fishing and trapping, but Crump contended the area had not been used extensively for such activity because of their undivided ownership.

Crump also stated a boat 'could not easily navigate' adjoining Gas Bayou.

Holleman also noted 'an obstruction' was placed near Bayou Enciente's mouth. Crump described the obstruction as a weir (a type of dam) designed to regulate the flow of salt water into the newly formed lakes and prevent gar fish from entering the bayou.

Crump said the weir was blown up twice with dynamite by persons unknown and noted the dam was a method of exercising 'private control of the lakes.'

He agreed with Holleman that the weir also controlled the bayou's use.

Regarding the easement purchase and sand-mining from Cinque Bambini property for the I-10 right-of-way, Crump explained, "We were acting at the state's request under threat of condemnation. We assented to the road contractor to the burrow area digging."

"We felt if we did not sell we would be in a position to obstruct construction of the I-10 system," he said.

Crump reported that in 1968 the construction company, T.L. James, conducted test borings and that company then asked the Cinque Bambini to sell some 1.5 million cubic yards of fill for the highway.

"We were told the state could save $150,000 by providing fill in this way," he stated.

Crump noted that overburden (waste dredging material) was placed on their property just south of I-10 and the artificial Bayou Enciente channel was dug to move a dredge into the now lake area.

He also reported the construction company secured all dredging and fill permits and that contracts with the company contained no exceptions for bodies of water within their property lines.

After a break for lunch complainants' attorneys objected to the defendants presenting Corps records concerning the dredging work.

Stewart overruled the objections and noted he wanted all information presented to make a fair decision.

Holleman also noted in the records that the County Board of Supervisors sent a resolution to the Corps that asked the weir be removed.

Crump explained the Corps finally decided to allow the weir.

Holleman then alleged the weir 'altered the course of Jourdan River' which drew another flurry of objections from the complainants' lawyers.

Saga's attorney also stated Cinque Bambini sold the road fill and gained two beautiful lakes.

Blass then objected to Holleman's questions of waterway ownership, but Stewart overruled his objection.

CRUMP, HARRIS TESTIFY THIRD DAY

When the hearing opened Wednesday morning Pyle again asked for tidal documents prepared by the state's expert witness, George Cole.

Cameron advised the court that Cole would not finish his work until that night and stated, "He has really been working his head off."

Pyle pleaded, "We are at a point where our expert witness will have to see the state's information before he takes the stand."

"The state's council makes a big point of how hard Cole has been working, but he's worked since September on this project," Pyle stated.

Stewart replied, "We'll do the best we can until we come to that point."

Crump again sat in the witness stand and reported when the Corps reversed its decision after receiving the supervisor's resolution that he, Attorney Walter Phillips and Norton Haas went to the Corps' Mobile office.

"A Corps official said he was not aware of the previous correspondence which approved the weir and said he could not locate any correspondence," Crump reported.

"A secretary was called and she came in the room and said she knew where the file was and pulled it out of a nearby filing cabinet," Crump stated.

"The official promptly informed us we were not in violation," he said.

Crump noted the Corps reversed its decision about the weir twice and eventually allowed the dam.

Holleman said a second written approval was not in the Corps files, but Crump replied, "We sat there and the Corps official told us face-to-face we were not in violation."

Saga's attorney reported Cinque Bambini was paid $58,700 for an approximate 87-acre easement and $37,000 for various damages.

Fritz Harris, Cinque Bambini's property manager for some 30 years, explained the property use and described bodies of water located within the property in question.

He said the initial 3,800 acres contained pasture lands, rice fields, timberlands and game management areas which sported ducks, deer, quail and fish ponds.

Harris reported that I-10 cut off cattle grazing areas, for some 400 head, south of the roadway and destroyed a duck field and fish pond.

He also noted the late James Crump in 1952 stocked deer which now thrive in county forests.

"A primary cattle feeding area was the marshlands south of I-10," he stated.

After Holleman objected to the length and nature of questioning by Taylor, the judge agreed and noted, "It's pretty clear this is useful land."

Taylor qualified his questioning by noting part of the public trust doctrine asserts the state's claim of land which is determined useless.

Harris reported land along Bayou LaCrosse and Jourdan River were used as grazing areas.

Regarding Bayou Enciente, Harris said he had 'occasionally' seen a fishing skiff in the bayou and described most waterways in question as small streams, marshy areas or slues.

As Blass was cross-examining Harris, Holleman objected to Phillips' questioning, but Stewart overruled again.

Harris also reported that he conducted controlled burns of the marsh areas now south of I-10 for cattle grazing which would 'burn to the water's edge.'

Wednesday afternoon the complainants expert witness, Paul T. O'Hagan of Craben-Thompson and Associates of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was expected to testify.

Bay home damaged by fire

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A Bay St. Louis home received damage to three rooms in a Saturday night fire, according to Fire Chief Andrew Lizana.

The home, located on Washington Street, was occupied by Zettie Farve. Lizana said, "We received two calls saying fire and smoke were coming out of two windows at 10:27 p.m."

The fire was quickly extinguished with damage to three rooms in the six room house.

Firefighters responding were Chief Lizana, Capt. Mike Williams, Lt. Ann Peneguy, Donald Manieri, Marj Blackstop, and Anthony Alexis, volunteer.

Cause of the fire was of an undetermined nature and damage was to clothing, furniture, walls, and ceiling in the three rooms, according to Lizana.

Lizana cautions everyone to be extremely careful with open burning because of the number of woods fires, especially in the county.

Lizana stated, "It is hard to believe there are so many fires with the woods as green as they are now. I guess the very high temperature has something to do with the number of woods fires which normally do not exist at this time of the year."

The Gulf Coast Junior College Lady Bulldogs will face a 17-game schedule next season, announced coach Doris Smith.

The basketball team posted a 10-11 record this year. Smith said the early loss of Susan Cooper, Perkinston, to a knee injury "hurt the team on rebounding. We did not have the rebound power and could not take the chances on those far shots."

Gulf Coast YMCA lists current activities

The Mississippi Gulf Coast YMCA of Harrison County, Francis X. Collins Branch, now has 60 percent of the planned aquatic programs in the beginning stages of implementation.

The pool schedule for the initial programs are 8:30 - 9:30 a.m., swim team; 9:30 - 10:30 a.m., swim lessons; 11:30 - 12:30 p.m., day camp swim time; 1:00 - 7:00 p.m., recreational swim for members; 7:00 - 8:00 p.m., adult swim and masters swim team.

Other aquatic programs, to include all phases of Scuba, Elementary School Swim Teams, Handicapped Swim, Water Safety Instructions and others will be scheduled in the next few months.

SUMMER CAMP

The YMCA will plan a Summer Camp for youngsters to begin July 6, 1981. The camp will include water safety, swimming, field trips, athletics, arts and crafts, basic gymnastics, and many other activities. The children may sign up for weekly sessions. Ages 3-5 years 1/2 day camp weekly fee: $16.00 members $20.00 non-members. Ages 6-12 years full day camp, weekly fee $25.00 members $30 non-members.

SWIM TEAM

The AAU Swim Team is now being formed. Call Jamie Day, 875-2966 for more information.

OTHER PROGRAMS

Future plans include a gymnastics team, Karate, Judo, Ladies Exercise, Cast

Net Knitting, Fishing Instruction. Courses in Basic Navigation, and many other special interest programs.

Flag Football teams will be organized throughout the Harrison County area in the Fall.

The YMCA concept of Flag Football and other activities for the very young is that each and every child plays an equal amount of time; ending the day and the season with a good feeling about themselves.

The Y tries to win, but it prefers winning people. Any adult who agrees with the Y's Philosophy and who would be willing to assist with the league in the fall should call Karon at 875-2966.

A Harrison County number and employee to call will be published soon.

Memberships for the Mississippi Gulf Coast YMCA are now accepted at 1810 Government Street in Ocean Springs, and at 2204 Sweetman Blvd. in Gulfport.

The wide acceptance by the Gulf Coast Community will eventually force a limit on registrations. When that happens, the Y will add all prospective names to the interest list and will continue to work toward the goal of opening more facilities throughout the three county area. A member of one YMCA on the Mississippi Gulf Coast is a member of every YMCA on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. It is the goal of the Mississippi Gulf Coast YMCA's to reach every segment of the population with Healthy Living Activities conducted in a Christian atmosphere. The YMCA is an Equal Opportunity Employer and is a United Way Agency.

Peachtree Road Race scheduled on cable tv

The 12th annual Peachtree Road Race, one of the largest 10 km (6.2 mile) footraces in the world, with a field of 25,000 runners, will be broadcast live in its entirety on July 4 from 7:35 - 9:05 a.m. (Eastern) by SuperStation WTBS, Atlanta.

WTBS will also present an hour of highlights from The Peachtree Road Race the same night at 9:05 p.m. (Eastern).

WTBS is carried over Hancock Cable's Ch. 7. Since its 1969 beginning, The Peachtree Road Race has attracted runners "not only from all over the U.S., but also from Canada, Central America, Europe and Africa to compete on this difficult and beautiful course down historic Peachtree Street in Atlanta, made even more challenging by the heat and humidity of Georgian July.

Using the most advanced video technology available, TBS Sports will position eleven cameras along the route, with one microwaved from a pace car and two from helicopters. All cameras will be linked together by a microwave hook-up, to allow immediate visual access to the action from start to finish.

Running and/or jogging is currently one of the most popular leisure activities in the country, with recent estimates of more than 25 million Americans participating in the sport. Because it is a sport that demands careful training, and because of the national attention focused on The Peachtree Road Race, WTBS, in cooperation with the Atlanta Track Club, will televise a series of running tips in the weeks immediately prior to the event. These 60-second tips will be presented by two-time Peachtree Road Race winner, Craig Virgin, and will cover a number of important aspects that include health benefits, equipment, proper training and safety.

Atlanta sportscaster Bob Neal, host of the popular WTBS fall sports program "Football Saturday on TBS" will anchor on race day, assisted by TBS sportscaster Fred Hickman and Kevin Christopher, along with distance runner Bob Varsha.

Sponsors for The Peachtree Road Race include Del Taco, Adidas, Sun Life Group of America, Coca-Cola, Lanier Business Products and C&S Bank.

The Belhaven Soccer program will offer an additional feature. A video-cassette recorder and camera will be used to tape games and to instruct individual players on their weaknesses.

Cost of each camp is $120 per camper. This includes all meals, lodging, T-shirt, insurance and a top quality soccer ball. Ten or more campers from the same team who pre-register will receive a $10 discount on each player in the group.

For more information or to register for one of the soccer camps, contact Coach Bill Lyttin, Belhaven College, Jackson, Mississippi, 39202; phone (601) 960-7400.

Coaching workshops listed

USM's athletic administration and coaching staff reminds high school football, basketball and soccer coaches and student trainers of registration dates for the following:

July 6-10: Contemporary Health Issues with Dr. Walter Yarrow will emphasize health programs.

July 13-15: Adult Soccer Workshop with Lou Marcland, USM Intramural Recreation chairman. Soccer principles and methods will be applied to coaching.

July 13-15: Student Trainer and Advanced Student Trainer Workshop with Jim Gallaspy. Taping first aid and emergency situations stressed through classroom and on-the-field sessions. For outdoor recreation directors and leisure education teachers: June 28-July 3: Out door Recreation Seminar with Kent Rindfleisch and Newton Wilkes. Camping, canoeing, orienteering included.

July 20-24: Recreation

Education for Teachers, same staff. Will emphasize the programs and benefits of recreation and leisure to motivate leaders.

All workshops will be held on the USM-Hattiesburg campus. Coaching courses will register in the USM Fieldhouse. Recreation courses will register in the McLeMure Hall lobby. Call USM Conferences & Workshop at (801) 268-4265 for more information.

Congressional bills termed 'raids on public lands'

Two "Sagebrush Rebellion" bills recently introduced in Congress represent "raids on public lands" in behalf of private interests, according to Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation.

Both H. R. 3364, the proposed National Mineral Security Act, and the proposed Public Lands Reform Act of 1981, were introduced by Rep. James Santini, (D-Nev.).

"These bills are brazen attempts in the name of 'states rights' to open up to private, commercial timber, grazing, and mining interests millions of acres of public lands that are now owned by all Americans," Hair warned.

The Sagebrush Rebellion refers to a movement, whose basic goal is to transfer to state control huge tracts of publicly-owned lands now managed by the federal government.

About 460 million acres of federally-managed and publicly-owned lands would be turned over to state ownership. "Such a move would be disastrous for much of the nation's fish and wildlife," said Hair.

"Under a number of state constitutions, state-owned land must be managed for maximum economic return. That means little consideration would be given to fish, wildlife, or recreational values."

"In addition, state resource agencies just aren't adequately staffed or funded to do the job now handled by federal agencies, which carefully manage public resources on the basis of multiple-use; that is, with consideration for fish, wildlife, recreation, as well as economic values."

"According to Hair, Santini's National Mineral Security bill would grant the Secretary of the Interior the "personal discretion to open up to the mining industry National Parks, Wildlife Refuges, and other protected areas established by Congress."

The bill also provides that mineral development will be the dominant use of land administered by the Bureau of Land Management and extends the 1984 deadline for making new mineral claims in wilderness areas an additional ten years.

The bill "disregards the fact that public lands largely sustain the nation's outdoor recreational heritage. It fails to provide for development in an orderly, well-planned manner with minimal disruption to renewable resources," Hair said.

"Compared with Public Lands Reform Act of 1981, the proposed National Mineral Security Act may appear to be a compromise," he noted. "However, we must not be fooled. Both bills are equally onerous and are the heart and soul of the 'Sagebrush Rebellion,' which seeks to abrogate the public interest in the public lands. What Santini is saying, in effect, with these two bills, is: Open up the public lands to commercial development or we will take them away from you and give them to the states to turn over to the private interests."

Wildcats sign Cajun center

Billy Holmes, the head basketball coach at Pearl River College put the icing on his recruiting year last week by signing a 6'7" forward.

Clint Anthony Thibodeaux, a star for the Notre Dame Pioneers at Crowley, La. signed the last out-of-state scholarship the Wildcats had to offer. "He is the big forward I've been looking for all year," Holmes said. "to say the least, I'm very pleased."

Thibodeaux averaged 21 points per game during his junior and senior years and he also pulled down an average of 13 rebounds per contests. Clint made All-District BAA and All-Acadia Parish while playing for Coach Donald Gaspard and the Pioneers.

Thibodeaux said he remembered Coach Holmes from when he attended a summer basketball camp at McNeese State where Holmes was an assistant coach. "He impressed me and I wanted to be under his direction," Thibodeaux said.

The admiration is obviously mutual as Holmes is definitely impressed with the Crowley native. "Clint is quick, an excellent board man and is really strong inside," Holmes said.

Holmes said the signing of Thibodeaux ended his recruiting season. "We have the potential for an outstanding team," Holmes said. "We have talented big people and we have depth."

Clint is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Thibodeaux of 110 Wright Avenue in Crowley, La.

Song of the toad a summer serenade

One of the surest signs of summer can be heard any warm evening at the edge of a pond or puddle: the surprisingly sweet trill of the toad.

Not only is the toad a better singer than many birds, but its metamorphosis from an aquatic tadpole into an insect-eating terrestrial creature in just two months is one of the miracles of nature.

Toad life is dependent upon the spring vocalizing. According to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, there are more than 200 different kinds of true toads in the world, and each one sings its own mating song.

The male toad inflates its throat sac like a miniature balloon and forces air through the vocal chords to produce a trill that can be sustained for up to half a minute.

The female toads, most of which don't sing, can't resist the males' songs. The females lay thousands of jelly-coated eggs in long strips, which the males then fertilize.

About four days later, tiny tadpoles emerge from the eggs and must now escape such enemies as fish, birds, and snakes, explains the National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children.

Tadpoles are equipped with gills which extract oxygen from the water. About one-inch in length, with rounded heads and long, wiggling tails, they look more like fish than toads. They feed on water plants, which they devour with file-like teeth, says Ranger Rick.

Gradually, the tadpole leaves its strictly aquatic life behind for that of a land-dwelling toad. The first signs of this metamorphosis are two bumps that appear near the tadpole's tail. "The stumps slowly grow into hind legs," explains Ranger Rick. "Soon the front legs appear in the same way. The tadpole swims with its back legs now, as its tail begins to shrink." Scientists believe that the tadpole actually absorbs its tail for nourishment.

As the legs develop and the tail shrinks, the tadpole also loses its gills and develops lungs for breathing air.

When the young toad crawls from the water, it has a voracious appetite. "It has lost its teeth and its taste for plants," says Ranger Rick. "Its nibbling mouth has changed to a wide, snapping one with a long, sticky tongue for catching insects and other small animals."

A hungry toad is always a welcome sight in a garden, for they eat up to 10,000 insects in one summer.

They range in size from the huge Colorado River toad, bigger than a human hand, to the petite oak toad, which barely covers a thumbnail and is the smallest found in North America.

Toads do not return to the ponds where their lives began until they are three or four years old. Then, if they're male, they take up the full-throated spring song. If female, they're ready to hop to it.

The two nations will meet at Flushing Meadow, New York, on July 10-12 to vie for the right to advance to the semifinal round of Davis Cup tennis competition.

The American entry, captained by Arthur Ashe, will feature a line-up of John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors, two of the world's top three players, and the Mayer brothers, Gene and Sandy. Ivan Lendl will lead the Czech team.

The quarterfinal action will start at noon each day, with a pair of singles encounters on Friday, July 10 and Sunday, July 12, and a doubles match on Saturday, July 11.

ESPN's Jim Simpson and former tennis great Cliff Drysdale will describe the action.

ESPN, a subsidiary of the Getty Oil Company, now reaches more than 9.4 million subscriber homes throughout the nation in every state except Hawaii.

Annual Ole Brook Festival set Aug. 1

The Brookhaven-Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce is planning the seventh annual "Ole Brook Festival."

The festival, which will consist of a flea market, arts and crafts show and antique and special interest automobile show, will be held on the Whitworth College campus in downtown Brookhaven on August 1, 1981.

The times of the festival are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The exhibitors interested in reserving space in the festival should contact the Brookhaven-Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce.

The price for a 10' x 10' exhibit space is $7. Exhibit space will be reserved for the display on a first come, first served basis.

In addition to the regular displays, various clubs and organizations in the community will be operating food concessions. "We expect this year's festival to exceed last year's by a large margin," stated Tom Gartman, Festival chairman.

"We are interested in having something that everyone can enjoy and admission is free."

The Chamber of Commerce in Brookhaven encourages everyone who wishes to display to get their money in to the Chamber office as soon as possible as the booth spaces are going fast.

Additional information in the form of a brochure and entry form can be obtained by calling or writing the Brookhaven-Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce.

Musicians from 15 states were at the University of Southern Mississippi recently to participate in a workshop conducted by Sigurd Rascher, renowned saxophonist. Learning from Rascher was Glenn France of Waveland.

Rascher's career spans 50 years and four continents. He began his performance career in 1931 in Europe and has since performed as soloist with many of the world's great orchestras.

He has performed with orchestras in Berlin, Stockholm, London, New York, Chicago and Cleveland. The great bulk of saxophone repertoire has been written for and dedicated to him, according to workshop director Kenneth Deans, a USM professor of music.

R-V TOMMY MUNRO

GCRL outfitting new ocean research ship

The Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs has taken possession of a new oceanographic research vessel, the R-V Tommy Munro, according to GCRL Director Dr. Harold D. Howse.

The new vessel is named for former state representative Tommy Munro of Biloxi.

Munro was not in the Legislature at the time he was asked to serve out the term of a deceased member of the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning.

He took a strong interest in completing the vessel, on which work had stopped after a Florida contractor defaulted on a contract with the State Building Commission.

A contract was awarded in April, 1980 to Bender Shipbuilding and Repair Inc. of Mobile, Ala. and provided $490,158 to make the vessel operational.

Since then several change orders have been approved by the Board of Trustees for the Laboratory to spend $123,300 of self-generated funds so the contractor could outfit and equip the vessel with additional items not contracted for.

"Operation of the R-V Tommy Munro will be largely in support of the biological, chemical, geological, and physical oceanographic investigations conducted by scientists on the Laboratory staff," stated Dr. R. A. Woodmansee, who has been named by Howse to coordinate vessel activities.

Woodmansee also served as project leader during the period of vessel construction.

"Some work remains to be done under Laboratory supervision before overnight cruises can be scheduled," Woodmansee added. A range, refrigerator, and freezer are to be installed in the galley, and insulation, sheathing, bunks, a dining table and benches are to be added to the passenger quarters.

The vessel is 97.5 feet long overall (85.5 feet at the waterline) and the breadth is 25 feet.

The hull and wheelhouse are constructed of steel. The vessel is propelled by twin screws powered by two Detroit diesel engines, each rated at 300 H.P. (1800 rpm). It is equipped with Loran C, radar, and an automatic pilot. Electrical power is provided by two diesel powered generators, each supplying 50 kilowatts.

Equipment on the vessel includes two hydraulically driven trawl winches and one hydrographic winch.

The split-frame trawl winches are capable of trawling in up to 200 fathoms (1200 feet); the hydrographic winch is capable of sampling to water depths of 2000 fathoms or 12,000 feet.

The vessel can accommodate up to 20 people and will be able to operate out of port for 10-12 days or longer, depending on actual running time, Woodmansee said.

Safety systems have been installed on the vessel such as the U.S. Coast Guard approved halon fire extinguishing system in the engine room.

The Coast Guard also approved the vessel for ocean service in terms of stability and an American Bureau of Shipping Load Line Certificate was obtained for the vessel.

Howse said that the Laboratory plans to retire the R-V Gulf Researcher, a 65-foot wooden vessel built in Maryland in 1944 for the Army Transportation Corps.

It has been used in support of the Lab research and education programs since 1964.

The Gulf Researcher was acquired by the Laboratory through the Mississippi Surplus Property Commission in Jackson and a Coast shipyard was hired to outfit it as a research vessel with funding provided by a $99,350 grant to the Lab from the National Science Foundation.

FRED ULMER, who will be a senior at St. Stanislaus High School, has been selected as drum major of the St. Stanislaus Band for the 1981-82 school year. He has been a member of the band for four years and has served as section leader in the drum line for three years. He earned three superior solos and three superior ensembles at the Gulf Coast Solo and Ensemble Contest. He has made the Gulf Coast Honor Band for three years and merited an All State Ensemble at the University of Southern Mississippi Clinic. He will attend the USM Major Clinic from July 5-11. Ulmer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mel Ulmer Jr. of Bay St. Louis.

In the heat of competition, sports enthusiasts may lose sight of eye safety. The required sports—tennis, racquetball, badminton, which account for many of the 35,000 sports and recreational eye injuries in a year.

Soccer, gymnastics clinics set at USM

Youth Star Soccer Camp begins July 12 on the USM-Hattiesburg campus. Parents are asked to register their 7-18 year old boys and girls early for this year's five-day camp.

The third annual event will feature Jim Kane, head soccer coach at Northeast Louisiana University, whose playing career was highlighted by twice being selected to the U.S. Olympic trials and being drafted out of Jacksonville University in 1972 in the very first N.A.S.L. draft.

Student facilities will include indoor soccer, three soccer fields, an indoor pool and a cafeteria.

Contact Lou Mariani, USM Intramural Recreational Sports at (601)-266-4247 for more information, or write him at Southern Station Box 5155, Hattiesburg, MS 39401.

GYMNASTICS CLINIC

The National Gymnastics Institute Clinic at USM July 27-31 is now accepting applications from aspiring female gymnasts ages 7 and older.

The National Gymnastics Institute and USM are combining to offer this special clinic, described as the best women's gymnastic clinic in the South.

Contact USM Gymnastics Coach Michael Moulton, Intramural Recreational Sports Office, USM Box 5155, Hattiesburg, 39401 for more information.

USM Tennis Clinic set

Pearl River Junior College hires Poplarville coaches

Poplarville High School coaches Wayne Jones and Ned Eades will move across town this coming fall to coach for the Pearl River College Wildcats.

Jones was hired as assistant football coach and Eades as assistant basketball and head baseball coach by the Pearl River College Board of Trustees here Tuesday at the regularly scheduled June meeting.

Jones will be replacing David Earl Johnson as the Wildcats' line coach. Johnson resigned this past month to go into private business. Eades, who recently accepted the head coaching job at LSU, a two-year school in Alexandria, La. will assist head-basketball coach Billy Holmes.

"We feel we have two excellent coaches and leaders," said Marvin R. White, PRC's president. "They have done an outstanding job at Poplarville High School and we are expecting even greater things here at the River."

Jones, a graduate of Kosciusko High School and Mississippi State University, was an outstanding student athlete. At Kosciusko, Jones lettered four years in football and was a five-year letterman in track. He also played basketball and baseball.

Jones signed a four-year scholarship with the Mississippi State Bulldogs where in 1973 he was named the Bulldogs' Most Valuable Player and Outstanding running back in the Southeastern Conference. He made All SEC his junior and senior years.

During his senior year at Mississippi State, Jones made All-American, played in the Senior Bowl in Mobile, was named Mississippi's Outstanding Athlete and was drafted by the New York Jets in the NFL and by Florida in the NFL.

Jones' coaching experience includes a one-year stay as head football and athletic director at Pearl River Academy in Plaquemine and Hattiesburg Prep in Hattiesburg.

For the past three years he has been line coach and head track coach at Poplarville High School. During the past three years the Hornets have won three Apache Conference and district titles and one state title.

Eades served as head basketball coach of the Poplarville Hornets boys squad for the past five years and also head coach of the baseball team.

Since his arrival in Poplarville in 1978, Eades' basketball teams have compiled an overall record of 101-50, including a 32-4 record this past season which captured the Apache Conference championship. His teams have won two district titles also.

Eades is a graduate of William Carey College in Hattiesburg. He began his coaching career at North Forrest High School where he remained for one year before moving to Columbia High School for two years. From 1972 until 1974 he served as a graduate assistant baseball coach at the University of Southern Mississippi.

While here Eades spent two summers as head coach of the American Legion baseball team in Plaquemine.

Eades was an outstanding high school and college athlete. He played baseball at William Carey and spent two years in the Cincinnati Reds Baseball organization.

Eades has received many honors and participated in many other activities. In 1978 he was named Mississippi's Jaycee of the Quarter. He was named Apache Conference Coach of the Year in 1978, 80 and '81.

Here in Poplarville Eades established the T-Ball League, was youth baseball coach, American Legion Baseball Coach and member of the Poplarville Jaycees.

KILLER BEES

Romance has calmed down the "killer bees" of Brazil, reports International Wildlife magazine. Mating with more docile bees has reduced the hostility level of the tough African immigrants by 50 percent. The Brazilian bees are actually no more poisonous than other bees, but their tendency to attack in armies of 1,000 — rather than in gangs of 50 to 100 — caused 16 known human deaths in Brazil between 1962 and 1974.

"Killer bee" swarms are expected to arrive in the U.S. around 1985.

Welfare Department sponsoring picnic

The Hancock County Department of Public Welfare is planning its second annual Foster Parent-Foster Child picnic for August 1.

"We are confident that with your contributions and help that this event will be as successful as last year's picnic was," said Bridget Koval, county social worker.

There are presently 12 foster homes in Hancock County with a total of 80 inhabitants. Approximately 100 to 120 people are expected to attend this year.

"For this year's picnic to be as successful as the one last year, we are again calling upon our friends in our community for their assistance, as we do not have the financial means to independently sponsor the picnic ourselves," Koval added.

"We are in need of donations of cash, food items, non-alcoholic beverages, paper goods (such as paper plates, napkins, etc.) and inexpensive prizes for the field day events we are planning for the children," she continued.

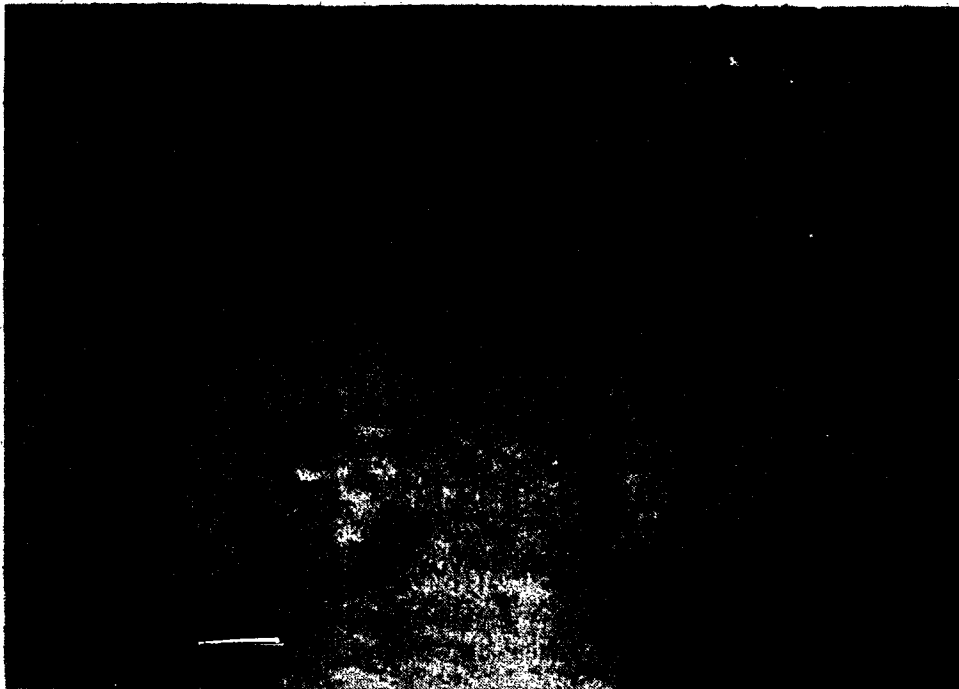

"If your business or organization is able to make a contribution of one of the mentioned items, please contact Bridget Koval at the Welfare Department at 467-4665, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. for further information."

"You may send a cash donation directly to the Hancock County Department of Public Welfare at P. O. Box 151, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi 38520," she noted.

"We hope that you will be able to help us in furnishing our children a day that they will truly remember. Thank you very much for your consideration," Koval continued.

"Any donation, no matter how small, will be useful and greatly appreciated," she concluded.

Safe swimming urged by Scouts

Swimming activities abound this summer, and Hancock County Scouts and leaders in the New Orleans Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, are urging observance of safe swim practices to make these activities enjoyable for everyone.

"Swimming always should be done in pairs," said J. Marc Sancho, Scouting vice president.

"This is known as the buddy system and should be used by young people and adults alike. Your buddy is there to help you should you have any difficulty while in the water."

Other safe swimming tips offered by Sancho are:

1. Always swim in a safe, familiar, inspected area with qualified adult supervision.

2. If you are unable to swim, take lessons. If you swim a little, learn to improve your ability.

3. Respect the water at all times and realize your own limitations.

4. Do not swim when overheated or extremely tired and take breaks from swimming to rest and warm up.

5. Swim in a safe place in the presence of lifeguards or other competent adult swimmers. Stay away from area directly in front of a diving board.

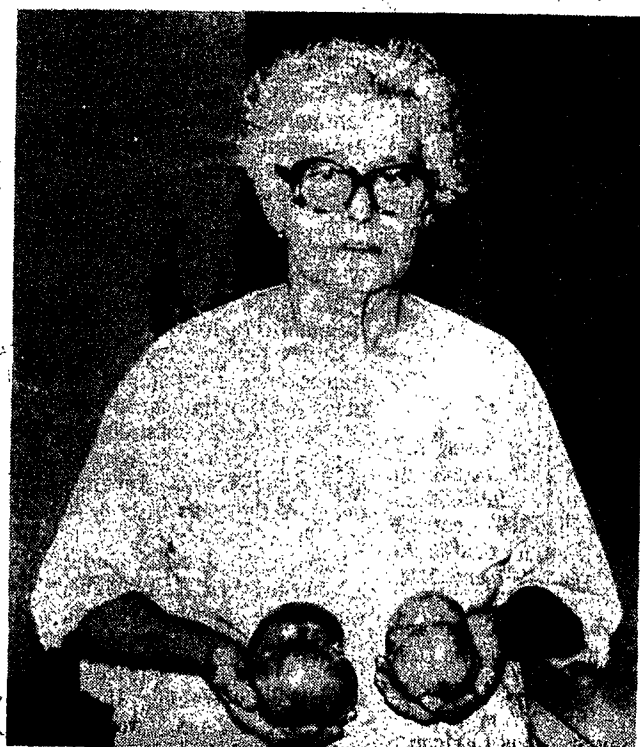

6. Be certain that rescue equipment such as buoys, boats, and reaching poles are readily available at your swimming area.

7. Never remain in the water when a storm approaches, as water serves as a conductor of lightning.

"By observing these basic safety precautions, we hope to avoid unnecessary swimming tragedies during the summer months," Sancho said.

Agronomist urges care in silage harvest timing

Time is critical to harvesting silage, and delays can result in silage of poor quality.

Dr. Charles Baskin, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service agronomist for seed and grain, reminds farmers that silage harvesting will begin soon in the southern part of the state and continue into August in north Mississippi.

Even though farmers spread harvesttime by planting varieties of corn that vary in maturity dates or by planting corn or sorghum at different intervals of time, it's still critical to begin harvesting at the proper time and to avoid delays once harvesting begins.

"Check equipment well before harvesttime to make sure it is in good working condition," he says. "If repairs are necessary, make them now. Sharpen knives and have some extra knives on hand so that replacements can be made without delay."

"Clean out silos and be ready to fill them with the new crop. In some instances, old silage may be usable and can be left in the silo. In most instances, the quantities are small, quality is poor and this material should be thrown away," he adds.

Harvesting plants at the proper stage of maturity is critical and relates directly to the quality of silage. The tendency is to begin harvest too early.

Harvesting too early will produce silage that is high in moisture. The amount of runoff will be excessive and quality will be poor.

Harvesting too dry will produce poor quality silage, too. Dry silage will not pack properly, thus increasing the amount of spoilage and preventing proper fermentation.

Harvest corn when the grain is in the full dent stage, Baskin tells farmers. At this time grain moisture is about 35 percent, and whole plant moisture will be around 65 percent.

This stage of development usually occurs about seven weeks after silking. Time to full dent may vary slightly depending on the weather, he says.

"Harvest sorghum when seed are in the hard dough stage," he says. "At this time seed moisture and whole plant moisture are comparable to corn in the full dent stage."

Sorghum seed mature from the top to the bottom of the head. When checking seed maturity, be sure to check the seed in the bottom of the seed head. Another measure of sorghum seed maturity is a change in seed color from green to the color of the mature seed.

PRC job training coordinator asset to Hancock industries

Borg-Warner, a chemical plant under construction at Port Bienville in Hancock County, needs a four week training seminar for 15 new employees.

Pan American, maintenance contractor of the National Space Technology Laboratories, wants a two night, five hour mini-course for planners and supervisors on planning and scheduling work.

Mason Chamberlain, managing firm for the new Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant in Hancock County will soon be ready for a four week course for mechanical inspectors. This course will be the first of many to be taught in a training program that will extend over a three year period and involve training for numerous job descriptions.

In the near future, Scott Paper Company of Hattiesburg, will be ready for a start-up training program to begin in Hattiesburg that will be centered around technical training and a new management concept.

And Randy Read, recently hired industrial training coordinator at Pearl River College, will be responsible for organizing each program.

Governor William Winter and the state of Mississippi is actively involved in recruiting desirable new industry and in supporting the expansion of existing industry in order to provide needed job opportunities for more Mississippi citizens.

A main factor in an industry's decision to re-locate or expand is the quality and quantity of available skilled labor at the proposed site. This is where Pearl River College and Read come in.

From now on, Read, who has been vocational-technical counselor and job placement director for the past five years at the Poplarville campus, will coordinate start-up, pre-employment, post-employment and continuing industrialized training for industries within the six counties supporting Pearl River College.

"Customized and prescribed vocational training of our people to meet the needs of industry is an important part of our state's economic development program," Read said. "Mississippi's Vocational-Technical Education system is recognized as one of the strongest in the nation."

Understandably, in the 1980 session of the Mississippi Legislature, vocational technical education was designated as the official industrial training delivery vehicle in the state.

The Pearl River College district, which is comprised of Forrest, Lamar, Jeff Davis, Marion, Pearl River and Hancock counties, is especially blessed with modern, well equipped facilities and strong programs.

Dr. James Sones is the dean of vo-tech affairs at Pearl River College. Within the PRC vo-tech system, is the post-secondary center at Poplarville. This center is directed by James Forte and offers training in eight technical and nine vocational major.

Dr. Cecil Burt is director of the Hattiesburg branch of Pearl River Vo-Tech and his center provides training to juniors and seniors of all the public high schools in Forrest County.

Located at Purvis, the Lamar County Vo-Tech is the newest addition to the PRC system and serves Purvis, Sumrall, Oak Grove, and Lumberton High Schools.

In Hancock County at Stennis International Airport, Al Bourgeois is director of the PRC Hancock County Vo-Tech complex. Bay St. Louis and Hancock county high schools are served by this center.

There are other quality centers within the district that are administered by the local school districts. These centers include Piquette and Jeff Davis County Vo-Techs and the Marion County Career Center in Columbia.

With Read's appointment, PRC becomes the eighth Junior College District within the state to add an Industrial Training Coordinator to its staff. Funds for these positions are made possible through appropriations set aside by the Mississippi Legislature to enable Mississippi to be more competitive in attracting new industry and to better serve the existing industry in the state.

"My job is to work in a cooperative effort with the directors and instructors of the centers within our district to provide customized training to meet the individual needs of specific industries," Read said.

"Industrial training is not designated to compete with the existing programs, but to be an extension of the services we have been providing. No matter where an industry may be located in our district, we have a center within a near proximity."

Industrial training differs from the regular programs in that the curriculum will be specifically what the individual industry needs instead of generalized to prepare a student to get a job in any one of numerous types of industries.

The training may be provided anytime of the year, scheduled in the day or night and the time frame may involve from a few hours to many months. Usually, the training is conducted in the vocational center nearest to the industry.

The directors of the centers are a vital link in the success of the training. "I have found the directors in this district to be extremely motivated and cooperative in wanting to serve their local industry by working with me to provide industrial training," Read said.

"Having a good supply of qualified instructors at the centers to draw from, enables us to provide experienced instruction for our programs," Read added. "Sometimes an instructor will be selected from the industry or from elsewhere if an unusual expertise is required."

If the training program will require in-depth training manuals Read will turn to the Industrial Training Research and Curriculum Unit at Mississippi State University. This unit can develop and print manuals that serve as instructional texts or to supplement other teaching materials.

At times Read may also need to call on a video team to record a process in a plant that can be used for another group of students. This video team travels throughout the state and also goes out of state if a process needs to be recorded in a plant that is located in another state.

When equipment is needed that the local vocational center cannot provide, some equipment can be obtained from Industrial Services warehouse in Jackson and additional equipment that is justified as necessary can be purchased or leased. After the completion of the project, all purchased equipment is taken to the warehouse to be used in other industrial training within the state.

In addition to buying equipment, the Industrial Services Division of Vocational Education also provides funds for teaching supplies and instructional and administrative salaries.

The Borg-Warner Training Project illustrates how a project program might be structured. The training began Monday, (June 15), and involves 160 hours during a four week time frame. The 15 new employees will receive instruction in physics, chemistry, general math, hydraulics, pneumatics, instrumentation, welding, electricity, pipefitting, machine shop, rigging and hoisting.

According to Dr. James Sones, the availability of an industrial training coordinator will greatly enhance vocational-technical education within the Pearl River district. "Not only will we receive valuable feedback from industry on their needs, we will also have an additional vehicle to place graduates from our regular on-going programs and a method to evaluate our training effectiveness," Sones said.

Read's office is located on the Poplarville campus. His telephone number is 601-795-2288.

ETV Brief

DU MAURIER'S 'REBECCA'
Public television's "Mystery" series will rebroadcast its adaptation of Daphne du Maurier's classic novel, "Rebecca," in four episodes at 9 p.m., Tuesdays, beginning June 30, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

More than 40 years have elapsed since the first publication in 1938 of Ms. du Maurier's most widely read novel. In 1940, Alfred Hitchcock gathered a cast of Hollywood's brightest stars, including Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier, to put "Rebecca" on film, a film that garnered two Oscars in 1941. Hitchcock took a few dramatic liberties with the original story, but the "Rebecca" for "Mystery" goes strictly by the book, according to producer Richard Beynon of the BBC. Beynon modestly declines full credit for having hit upon the idea of a television version of "Rebecca." "Bringing the Daphne du Maurier novel to television," he said, "had been in many people's minds for a long time. But since Hitchcock first filmed 'Rebecca' in 1940, sole rights for dramatic presentation were held by the late David O. Selznick. I simply suggested that there was no harm in trying for it. We took up the matter with film star Jennifer Jones. David Selznick's widow, who gave her permission. I believe she felt that the BBC would do it well." "Mystery" is a closed-captioned for the hearing-impaired.

Senior Citizens gather for 2nd annual shrimp boil

AFTER THE GAMES—Hancock County Senior Citizens assemble for a shrimp meal in Pavilion No. One in Buccaneer State Park recently.

The Hancock County Senior Citizens second annual shrimp boil was staged recently in Pavilion No. One in Buccaneer State Park.

Horse shoes, clothes pin toss, bean bag, hot potato, and a modified game of basketball using a trash can basket were included in the day's activities.

A lunch of boiled shrimp, potatoes, cole slaw and beverages followed the games when the group retired to shade under the pavilion to escape the heat of a beautiful summer day.

County officials were invited to the boil. Hancock County Senior Citizen Director Eve McDonald thanked them for their support of the center.

'Atlantic City Alive'

to air on cable TV

Ted Turner, president and chairman of the Board of Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., and Resorts International, a hotel and casino in Atlantic City, says plans to produce 'Atlantic City Alive,' a live, variety entertainment program to debut Sunday, July 5 from 7:05-8:05 p.m. on SuperStation WTBS Atlanta aired on Hancock Community Cable Channel Seven.

"Transmitted via satellite from 'The Carousel Cabaret' in Resorts International to WTBS, Atlantic City Alive will bring an hour of exciting family entertainment, much in the great variety tradition of 'The Ed Sullivan Show,' to cable viewers across America for 10 consecutive Sundays," Turner explains.

"Each program in the Atlantic City Alive series will feature a well-known special guest star, with 1950's singing sensation Bobby Rydell scheduled to appear on the July 5 debut, followed by Johnny Ray, 'The Little White Cloud That Cried' on Sunday, July 12. Other tentative headliners include Eddie Fisher, Rosemary Clooney, Pat Paulsen, Julius LaRosa and Frankie Avalon," he reports.

"In addition, Atlantic City Alive will showcase the talents of specialty acts (acrobats, magicians, jugglers and others), animal acts, upcoming musical talent and standup comedians each week, reviving, as David Spatz of the Atlantic City Press said, 'an art form whose time had come with Sullivan in the late 1940's and expired with him a quarter century later,'" Turner notes.

"The host for Atlantic City Alive, to be selected from the world of well-known television personalities, will be announced in the near future," he states.

"Turner Broadcasting is heavily committed to quality entertainment suitable for the whole family and Atlantic City Alive will be a great addition to the WTBS summer lineup in that respect," Turner says. Frank Gleb, producer and consultant to Resorts International says, "The biggest challenge we are up against is doing a live show, because so few shows are done live anymore. But all the ingredients are there and I don't see how we can fail."

Library summer program participation tops 200

What's one thing turkeys, deer, foxes and rabbits have in common?
They all make tracks.

School-age children are learning about these tracks and the animals that make them as they participate in the 1981 summer reading program at the Hancock County Library System.

This year's theme is "Animal Tracks."

The Hancock County Library summer reading program is well under way with more than 200 children registered at Bay St. Louis, Kiln and Waveland Libraries.

A poster contest was held during pre-registration.

Some 30 children submitted posters of real and fantasy animals.

One poster from each branch was chosen as overall

Activities during the first two weeks of the program included a full length feature film and a craft class at all three libraries.

This week a field day is planned at Bay St. Louis Library for Tuesday at 10 a.m.

best. Matt Barretts' poster was chosen at Bay St. Louis; Spurgeon Crosbys' at Waveland; and Drew Smiths' at Kiln.

Thursday at 10 a.m. a speaker from the Marine Education Center in Biloxi will talk about snakes and marine animals of the area. Wednesday at Waveland Library and Friday at Kiln Library, a film will be shown on zoo animals.

Free to all participants, the summer reading program is coordinated each year by the Mississippi Library Commission.

The Jacksonville, Fla. headquarters of Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc. reported sales of $487,754,000 during the four weeks ended May 27, compared with $435,449,000 for the similar period last year, an increase of 12 percent.

For the 48 weeks ended May 27, the total was $5,715,296,000, compared with $4,945,354,000, an advance of 15.6 percent. The company opened 64 new supermarkets and closed 33 since last June 25, having 1,223 units in operation as of May 27, compared with 1,186 last year.

Cable News Network marks first year

Cable News Network, Ch. 10 on the Hancock Cables, celebrated its first anniversary June 1.

Since its premier, CNN has aired 24-hour-a-day news non-stop.

During its first year, CNN has covered virtually every type of major story known to a news-gathering organization — from a Presidential election, to natural disasters, to international crises, to fast-breaking spot news, to the shooting of Pope John Paul II and President Reagan.

"Just about every major national and international story that has broken since last summer," quotes the Buffalo Evening News, "was covered first — and often best — by CNN through its satellite facilities."

To express gratitude to the cable companies and advertisers who backed and supported CNN from its infancy, CNN hosted a first birthday party during the annual NCTA convention in Los Angeles.

The gala event at the Bonaventure Hotel was attended by the cable industry's top personalities, as well as hollywood celebrities such as Lorne Greene, Barbi Benton, Robert Goulet, Buddy Ebsen, Barbara Eden, Dionne Warwick, Ernest Borgnine, LeVar Burton, Jeff Conaway,

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

PLANNED SAVINGS

Savings do not accumulate automatically. For most persons and families, savings are the result of careful planning.

Most families find that savings do not accumulate if you save what is left after paying living expenses and bills. To save, you must take out savings first, then live on what is left.

Here are some ways to help you start a savings program:

—Start by reworking your spending plan. Include your savings as a fixed amount in your plan. Pay yourself just as you pay other bills;

—In the beginning, start with a small amount so it will not be too hard to get the saving habit. Once you have established the practice, increase the amount;

—Make saving virtually automatic through payroll and bank account deduction plans;

—Contract for some relatively safe and liquid investment that can be purchased in small and regular payment units such as credit union shares, a savings bond-a-month plan, or one of the various savings and investment plans that many companies offer.

Many people find it difficult to save and have devised ways to prod themselves into savings.

Turn luxuries into cash. Save the money that now goes into some luxury like morning and afternoon snacks on the job, cigarettes, weekly trips to the beauty shop, or a day-a-week cleaning woman.

Breaking the pack-a-day habit could mean $250 a year or over $2,500 in 10 years. Doing without a weekly cleaning woman would save even more.

Many people find they never miss the money they have not had. Over-withholding income tax is one way to save as anything overwithheld can be refunded to you.

However, you earn no interest on your money, your money is not available for your use, and it is refunded only after you file your income tax report. When the tax refund is paid, invest the refund in a savings plan.

Make windfall cash count. Many families receive money they had not expected — tax refunds, gifts, bonuses, inheritances or dividends. Deposit such money in the bank before you have a chance to spend it.

By now, you have probably thought of other ways you can save.

Federal money freeze delays library program

The Hancock County Library System is one of six Mississippi public libraries selected to participate in a Folk Artist Residency Program, according to Prima Wusack, library system director.

The program, a joint project of the Mississippi Arts and the Mississippi Library Commissions, was developed to honor folk artists in their own communities while identifying the library as a cultural resource center.

Criteria used in selecting the six libraries from 14 applications received included responses to questions concerning the libraries interest in programming folk cultural activities; the library's available facilities, staff and audio-visual equipment needed for the program; and the library's willingness and ability to cooperate with community organizations.

Other selection criteria were based on geographic region, degree of folk culture research in the area and

Home security urged

as crime increases

"If you are concerned about the increasing threat to the security of your home and personal belongings, you have good cause," says Frances Fortenberry, housing specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service in Mississippi State.

All types of crime, burglary is the most common. "No matter where you live, the chances are better than average that you will be the victim of a burglary at night or, more commonly, during the day," she reports.

"Most homes are unprotected and a burglar needs no special equipment to gain entrance. If your home is difficult to enter, the burglar will probably pass it by for a less protected home," Fortenberry states.

"A home security program could be the key to making a place a more difficult and unattractive target for thieves. Establishing a security checklist for the members of a household is the best way to improve home security," she recommends.

Fortenberry says a checklist should include:

—Locks on all windows and doors. These locks should be able to withstand force;

—Entrance doors with a night chain and peephole;

—All windows, doors and vehicles are locked securely when leaving home;

—A hidden spare key where it can not be found easily;

—Outdoor lights on at night when you are home and when you are out. Make sure these lights eliminate any dark shadows around your home;

—All cabinets, closets and drawers locked where valuables are stored.

"Follow this checklist for your home. Be alert and concerned about the security of your neighbors' homes. Probably the most effective personal and home security is provided by inform, but planned, cooperation of neighbors," she says.

whether it is believed that the program would simulate future folk activities in the community.

Other libraries selected as participants are the Washington County Library in Greenville, the Harriette Person Memorial Library in Port Gibson, the Lee-Itawamba Library System-Fulton Branch, the First Regional Library in Hernando, and the Meridian Public Library.

Funded by the National Endowment for The Arts, the project was originally scheduled to begin on July 1. However, the beginning date has been postponed due to a freeze placed on all grants funded by NEA.

The freeze is expected to be lifted in late July at which time dates will be scheduled for the program to begin in each library selected.

1981 National-Canal Villere Super Markets

There seems to be a bumper crop of tomatoes this summer. Take advantage of the abundance by preserving them yourself at home.

If you do not have a garden consider purchasing them from the Farmers Market, open from 7 a.m. to noon Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Fairgrounds off Longfellow Road.

There have been numerous questions this food preservation season on recommendations for canning "low acid" tomatoes. Scientists with the USDA Agricultural Research Service (ARS) believe seed companies have contributed to misinformation about tomato acidity.

Some varieties of tomatoes, such as cherry, patio and light-colored (yellow) tomatoes, are described as "nonacid" or "acid free." These descriptions are based on taste, not the scientific measurement of acid content.

The ARS scientists found that cherry, patio and light-colored tomatoes are relatively high in acid compared to other tomatoes. There has been little or no change in the mean pH of tomato varieties introduced in the last two decades.

What does influence the acidity (or pH) of tomatoes is the degree of ripeness. Only firm, ripe tomatoes should be canned. Never can overripe tomatoes, because they lose acidity as they ripen.

Overripe tomatoes for canning may allow growth of the deadly toxin-producing bacteria. Tomatoes with soft spots or decayed areas should not be canned.

To loosen skins, dip into boiling water for about 1/2 minute; then dip quickly into cold water. Cut out stem ends and peel tomatoes.

RAW PACK — Leave tomatoes whole or cut in halves or quarters.

IN GLASS JARS — Pack tomatoes to 1/2 inch of top, pressing gently to fill spaces. Add no water. Add 1/2 teaspoon salt to pints; 1 teaspoon to quarts. Adjust jar lids, process in boiling-water bath (212 degrees F.) Pint jars - 35 minutes and Quart jars - 45 minutes.

HOT PACK — Quarter peeled tomatoes. Bring to boil; stir to keep tomatoes from sticking.

IN GLASS JARS — Pack boiling hot tomatoes to 1/2 inch of top. Add 1/2 teaspoon salt to pints; 1 teaspoon to quarts.

Adjust jar lids. Process in boiling water bath (212 degrees F.) Pint jars - 10 minutes, Quart jars - 10 minutes.

TOMATO JUICE — Use ripe, juicy, red tomatoes. Do not use overripe tomatoes or those with soft or decayed areas.

Wash, remove stem ends, cut into pieces. Simmer until softened, stirring often. Put through strainer. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart juice. Reheat at once just to boiling.

IN GLASS JARS — Fill jars with boiling-hot juice to 1/2 inch of top. Adjust jar lids. Process in boiling-water bath (212 degrees F.) Pint jars - 10 minutes and Quart jars - 10 minutes.

FREEZING TOMATOES — To freeze tomatoes remove stem ends, peel and quarter ripe tomatoes. Cover, cook until tender (10 to 20 minutes). Place pan in cold water to cool. Pack into containers, leaving head space for liquid pack. Seal and freeze.

STEWED TOMATOES — Remove stem ends. Peel and quarter ripe tomatoes. Seasoning such as onion or bell pepper, cover and cook until (10-20 minutes) or until juice is expressed to cover well the tomatoes and all is hot through. Place pan in cold water to cool, stirring occasionally. Pack into containers, leaving head space for liquid pack. Seal and freeze immediately.

teaspoon of lemon juice to my rice as it cooks, to give it that white, fluffy texture; the same amount of lemon juice helps keep cauliflower or potatoes or artichokes from discoloring. I also add a dash to my batters for coating oysters, chicken and such for deep-frying.

Lemon butter is one of the tastiest things to use with vegetables, such as broccoli, spinach, green beans. Just melt a quarter of a cup of butter (or margarine) and add to it a generous tablespoon of lemon juice, and a teaspoon or so of chopped green onions and parsley.

Warm a bit and mix with the cooked, seasoned vegetables just before serving. Slices of lemon are not only decorative atop broiled flounder or chicken — they also add an extra tangy taste sensation. They marry well with pork or veal chops or steaks as well.

And is there a sauce more flavorful than that wonderful "Avogomono" — egg and lemon sauce — that Greek cooks make, marvelous with so many dishes, from cubes of lamb or chicken to chunks of celery — for you have discovered, haven't you, that celery is not just for crunching on the appetizer tray, or for seasoning, haven't you? For a "different" dish of celery, here's

SELENO AVGOLEMONO
1 bunch celery
1 large onion, chopped
1/4 cup butter or margarine
Salt, pepper to taste
2 cups chicken stock (or you may use bouillon cubes and water)
2 egg yolks
Juice of lemon
Wash and de-stem the celery and de-top it (saving the leaves for fresh seasonings or for drying) then cut into two-inch lengths, approximately (no need to use a ruler).

Saute the onions in butter till golden, add the celery, stock, salt and pepper and simmer about 20 minutes, perhaps 30, depending upon the tenderness of the celery.

Meanwhile, beat the eggs until light colored, and slowly dribble in the lemon juice, continuing beating. Slowly, slowly stir into this a little of the hot stock or bouillon, again continuing to beat. Again, slowly stir in the remaining stock, cover and let stand a few minutes off the fire.

Serves four, unless I'm the chef, for I'm a "tasting cook." (Copyright, 1981, Katharine D. M. Caire).

P.S. And, if you, like so many of us, must skip or cut down on salt, just add a bit more lemon, and you won't miss the salt.

YOU AND YOUR PET

NEW CONTROL FOR FLEAS

Pet owners have a powerful new weapon in their perennial fight against fleas, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist.

Methoprene, an insect growth regulator that prevents the complete development of the immature forms of the fleas, is now available to pet owners or anyone with flea problems. William F. Chamberlain, an entomologist with USDA's Science and Education Administration, said that approval of methoprene for use by home owners has come after 7 years of development and research.

"Control of the common dog and cat flea is one of the most difficult home pest control problems," said Chamberlain who is located at the U.S. Livestock Insects Laboratory in Kerrville, Tex.

Methoprene is a very safe material because it has extremely low toxicity to mammals and has been shown in experiments to control fleas. The commercial product is now available only as a room fogger. However by the end of 1981, several commercial companies expect to have the product available as a spray and a shampoo.

They also expect to combine the growth regulating ingredient with substances that kill adult fleas already present.

at the almost unimaginably low dosage of one part per billion. The insect growth regulator, which has already proven extremely effective against other insect pests such as the horn and face flies of cattle, will give continuous protection against fleas for up to 75 days after a single application.

Flea control is a major pest control problem throughout the country. The immature fleas can persist a long time even after a person no longer has a pet. However, these immature fleas will not develop into adults if the indoor area has been treated with methoprene.

ASCS Report

REPORT DEADLINE

The final date for farmers planting certain program crops to file acreage reports at county ASCS office is July 15, according to Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

Gennin said that any farmer who plants cotton, rice, corn, peanuts, or grain sorghum, should file an acreage report. Farmers are urged to file their acreage reports just as soon as possible after planting is finished. Do not wait until July 15.

Gennin pointed out that timely and accurate acreage reports are required for eligibility for program benefits such as disaster and deficiency payments, if applicable.

Uncle Van Stockstill story recalls heyday of Gainesville

This is a story told to me by Mr. E. J. (Uncle Van) Stockstill.

Mr. Stockstill lived through real pioneer conditions and saw this country here where we live grow up from a wild forest to its 1965 condition.

"We lived over in Louisiana about ten miles south of Bogalusa when my father died. About ten days after he died our house burned. Since there were no ties to keep us over there, my mother decided to move back to the Poycune area. She bought 67 acres of land joining the Thigpen old place.

"There were no public schools back then. Sometimes people would get together and hire a teacher, each one paying tuition each month for each child attending the school, usually about $4 per month.

There was no school of any kind near us, so my parents hired a teacher to stay in our home and teach the children. I never went to a school such as we have now. Back then an education was hard to get, and I think was prized more for that reason.

"Back when I grew up there were no regular church services such as we have now. We might have had preaching once a month, but not regularly so. But once a year we would have what everybody called the 'Big Meeting.'

The big meeting would run about ten days. It was usually held at a time when the crops were laid by so most people could attend.

"At the big meeting several preachers would be on hand and everyone of them would preach, and when I say 'preach,' I mean 'Preach,' for they would talk by the hour. These old time preachers preached because they loved to preach the gospel. They got very little, if any, money.

"During the big meeting dinner would be served on the grounds. And what dinners those good old time women would serve! Women back in those days prided themselves on their cooking. They not only cooked good food but they cooked lots of it. Real food was served, no synthetic stuff, or canned food, or overflavored food or pre-prepared food such as you see so much of today.

"They served the real thing with all the natural vitamins in it—so tasty that my mouth waters even now just to think about it. Someone has said that maybe food tasted better to me back when I was young. Well, maybe so, but at least the women of the old days took much more interest in home affairs.

"Most everybody in the whole countryside would attend the big meeting. Now, looking back, I wonder if they attended so much to hear the preaching as to partake of the delightful feasts served at dinner time during the revival period. I am sure there would not have been nearly so many people attend if they had not, like me, looked forward to the big dinners that followed the morning service. I remember how I would sit in a hot church on an uncomfortable seat with sweat rolling down my back and drenching my clothes.

"Sometimes I think we really do not appreciate the good women who lived back in the good old days. They could not play the piano like the modern woman—they never took any lessons in art, but what melodies in food they could contrive with their pots and pans. They were not interested in bridge tournaments and bridge scores, but they knew where their children were day time and night time. They did not use their time attending the country club, or any substitute; but they taught their daughters the art of homemaking with all its many old time tasks and obligations. Every girl knew not only how to cook but how to do the many other things required in the homes of that day. They were not dressed in the latest fashions, but they shone brightly in their fidelity to their husbands and in the discipline of their children.

"I'll tell you something else, too. There were no teen-age problems when I grew up. I give the good old time women most of the credit for that. Parents controlled and disciplined their children in the good old days.

"I know from experience that children can be controlled if the parents really try. The big trouble today is that parents themselves need discipline. Like someone said, the boy runs around at night because he is afraid to stay home by himself.

"People got most of the cash they had back in the old days from logs put into the river and floated down to the sawmills at Gainesville, Logtown and Pearlinton, and from the sale of tar, turkeys, charcoal and from cattle shipped by boat from Gainesville to New Orleans.

"For more than 100 years Gainesville was the only town in this whole part of the country where people could go and buy things they needed from stores. In fact, Gainesville was the main town for this area for a longer period than Poycune has been. Everybody from a big area went to Gainesville to do their business. For a long time Gainesville was the county seat of Hancock County.

"After the railroad came through about 1884, stores were built at the new towns on the railroad, and Gainesville began to go down. The first store to be built at Nicholson was a small one that belonged to a man named Estapoo who had drifted in from no one knew where. A short time after he had started in business he caught smallpox from a man who went into his store, and in a few days he died. Back then people were deathly afraid of smallpox. The sheriff of Hancock County was sent for. He came to Nicholson and burned the building to the ground with all its contents.

"Another disease that people were very much afraid of was yellow fever. When yellow fever would break out at Bay St. Louis or Pearlinton, many people would leave their homes and flee to the country and stay until the epidemic was over with.

"They would start out and go to people's homes up in this area and find someone willing to take them in. Prominent people with big fine homes would leave them to keep from taking the dread yellow fever.

"In 1876, a man named Joe Mitchell homesteaded 160 acres of land where a good part of Poycune now stands.

He built a small house. In 1881, when the final survey of the railway was made and they began securing right of way, Mr. Mitchell said that if they built the railroad here he would move. When he was asked why he would move, he said the trains might kill all his children and all his stock. He kept his word. When he saw them start clearing the right of way, he traded his 160 acres to his Uncle Pembroke Mitchell for a red heifer yearling and moved to Catahoula Creek and built a grist mill there.

"What do you think of that? A big part of what is now west Poycune—160 acres of land—was traded for a red heifer yearling.

"The railroad into this section was built from about 1881 to 1885. Crews of men with teams and equipment came in and started to work on the railroad in early 1881.

"The railroad was all built at about the same time, contracts being let all along the road, to different contractors. These construction crews were rough and tough and brought a new kind of work to this area. These construction crews seemed to get along pretty well during the week, but on weekends the liquor flowed and there was often big excitement, killing and fighting and generally a rough time.

"The first train came into Poycune in 1885, 96 years ago. Lots of people, almost everybody in the country round about came in to Nicholson and other points to see the first train. For some time trains ran only to Nicholson where there was a big crowd that first day. I don't think it actually happened, but it was told that one old man saw the train come pulling in. He grabbed all his children and family and was hurrying them away towards his home. Someone asked him why the big hurry. He said he wanted to get away from that thing because he was afraid it might up and start sideways across the country and kill everybody. Anyway, the trains coming brought a new day to this area.

"The first track on the NO&NE railway was a narrow gauge track. Trains from New Orleans could go only to Meridian where this line connected with standard gauge roads.

"If a car of lumber was sent from Nicholson it would have to be unloaded and put into a standard gauge car at either Meridian or New Orleans. After the railroad had been operating a few years, the track was changed to standard gauge, as it is now.

"The railroad cars back then were linked together by link and pin couplings, and there were hand brakes on each car. A small rod engine, like you used to see on the logging trains in this section, pulled the first trains; 14 cars including the caboose made a full train when trains first ran into Poycune."

ETV Brief

MIGRANT WORKERS

Five documentaries produced by CBS News and aired as specials by CBS between 1960 and 1970 will air on public television beginning Saturday, June 27, with "Harvest of Shame." The public television airing of these programs marks their first rebroadcast since their original air dates. "Harvest of Shame," reported by Edward R. Murrow, the late CBS news correspondent, can be seen at 7 p.m., Saturday, June 27, on the Mississippi ETV Network. "Harvest of Shame" is the stark story of America's migratory workers who harvest the nation's food. The program focuses on actual workers laboring in the fields in various regions of the country, their low wages, substandard living conditions and poor diets.

Sanitation practice controls roaches

A sure way to make any good housekeeper's face turn red is to see a roach on her spotless floor.

These troublesome pests destroy food and clothing with their chewing mouthparts. They may carry germs to food from their breeding and hiding places, causing contamination.

Five kinds of roaches infest homes: the large American or brown roach, the oriental black roach, the brown-banded roach, the small water bug or German roach, and the smoky brown roach.

"Screens over the doors and the windows will help keep roaches from invading houses from the outside," said Dr. Ted Brook, entomologist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "Sanitation and good housekeeping are definite pluses for control."

When these precautions are not enough, Dr. Brook recommends using a spray of 2 percent malathion, or 5 percent diazinon, or 5 percent chlorpyrifos (Dursban), or 1.1 percent propoxur (Baygon) to control roaches, especially the small water bugs. Baygon roach bait also is effective, Dr. Brooks added.

Roaches hide during the day in sheltered, dark places, usually under sinks or drainboards, behind wall cabinets and in other similar places. Their flattened bodies enable them to go through tiny cracks.

"Sprays or dusts should be directed into these hiding places," Dr. Brook advised. "The roaches come out at night looking for food. As they look for food, they come in contact with the dust or spray and are poisoned by it."

Be sure to remove dishes and food from closets and cabinets before spraying. You can replace them as soon as the spray has dried.

College trustees rehire Hayden

Gulf Coast Junior College board of trustees voted to rehire Lillian Hayden, wife of GJC President J.J. Hayden Jr., in the secret ballot, the trustees were 14-11 in favor of Mrs. Hayden.

Since January 1980 Mrs. Hayden has been on leave of absence after her indictment for false pretense in connection with the now-defunct Developmental Learning Associates. She was chairperson of the general studies department at the Perkinston Campus.

Mrs. Hayden in March pleaded no contest in Harrison County Circuit Court after charges against her were reduced to a misdemeanor. She was fined $1,000, given a 90-day suspended jail sentence, and ordered to repay $7,500 of her $30,666 salary from DLA.

The organization was a preschool program for handicapped children in six south Mississippi counties.

She will not resume her position as chairperson, but will have assignments in the general studies program at Perkinston Campus, and possibly the Jackson County and Jefferson Davis campuses.

Dr. Hayden said there is a possibility that some college personnel will resent the rehiring of his wife. "But I hope they recognize that my position was based upon a principle."

He said that if they were in a similar situation and faced with dismissal "arbitrarily and without any charges...they would understand the situation."

Trustee Russell Quave, long-time critic of the college administration, disagrees. He said the rehiring "will have a compound effect on the morale of the faculty and will not be in the best interest of this institution."

Hayden noted that "Quave bases his position on a moral charge. And the court had to deal with that. I don't know of anything moral involved here."

Quave charged that in the DLA case there is "a certain stigmatism that she (Mrs. Hayden) is under at this time, which is a liability. And liability should not be a part of this college."

"By the action today, we may be telling the youth of our four-county district that crime pays. And I don't believe that," he said.
